Holy Naam — the Word

Sant Kirpal Singh passed on from this earth in 1974. As such, He is no longer taking on new people to guide out of this world and back to God. He left many books that explain, as much as can be in a worldly language, the meaning of life. The books and the Ruhani Satsang website <http://www.RuhaniSatsangUSA.org> are maintained to help stir an interest in God and to help people know what to look for in their search for the way back home.

When asked about a successor, we can only offer this quote from the Master:

Today there is a great awakening beginning. Some have got the answer, some have not; but the search to solve the mystery of life has been born all over the world. The day that question arises in the mind is the greatest day of one's life; for once it is born, it does not succumb until it is satisfied.

So, make your life an example of the teachings you follow — live up to them.

If you have a strong desire to get it, then God Himself will make the arrangements for you.

TO THE HONEST SEEKER

The term 'Spirituality' is hard to define. The scope and extent of the subject is so vast and varied in its many aspects that it can hardly be put into so many words. Suffice it to say that it deals with the immutable and eternal facts of life — the active principles that are enlivening the entire creation.

The quest for the 'Spirit' and for the 'Laws of Spirituality' has ever been in the human breast from the dawn of consciousness in man; yet with all its hoary antiquity, the subject retains its freshness as ever before and shall continue to do so. The Spirit or Soul is the vital flame in man, in the light and life of which he lives and has his being, and no wonder that in every clime and in every age, the leaders of spiritual thought — the sages and seers, the saints and sadhs — have attempted to solve the mystery of life.

The subject of Spirituality is concerned purely with the problems connected with the Spirit or Soul — to wit, its origin or source, what it is, its seat in the body and its relation thereto, how it functions in the physical world, whether it is possible to separate it at will from the body and bodily adjuncts, the mind and the senses, and if so, the various processes connected therewith. It deals with the spiritual journey through different spiritual planes and the spirit's capability of traversing the same, the ultimate goal or destination to which this journey leads, and other allied topics, such as the welfare of the spirit, how to feed it and with what, for on its health depends the health of the mind and the body. These are some of the vital questions that fall within the purview of our inquiry.

*God is in the soul
and the soul is in God,
as the sea is in the fish and the fish is in the sea.*
— St. Catherine —

Spirituality is more a practical science than a mere theoretical dissertation. The various scriptures of the different religions of the world provide us with the theoretical aspect only and cannot give us a demonstrative experience of the Reality in the laboratory of the human body. Writings like the Vedas, the Upanishads, the Avesta of the Zoroastrians, the Tripatakas of the Buddhists, the Gospels, the Quran, the Adi

WHAT IT IS

*Granth, Triratana*s of the Jains, and other canonical literature and extracanonical works, with their commentaries, etc., medieval and modern (the Mahabhasyas, the Angas and Upangas, etc.), all might point the Way but have no power to take us there. Their chief merit lies in the spade-work they do in creating an interest in the aspirants for Paravidya or the Knowledge of the Beyond. But the Transcendental Experience can be gained only from a Living Master, a Murshid-i-Kamil, well versed and competent in the practical aspects of Spirituality. Life and Light can come only from the Living-impulse of a Master Saint, whose glance of grace is more than enough to quicken higher life in the disciple.

The greatest teachers of humanity make use, according to the individual needs of the disciple, of all three methods: (i) Anva or gross, that is, imparting spiritual instructions by word of mouth; (ii) Shakta or subtle, that is, instilling higher spiritual consciousness in the disciple without his having to go through the external sadhan or discipline; and (iii) Shambhava or Transcendental, that is, raising the disciple, in infinite mercy, to the highest stage of Realization without his having to do anything at all. As an unerring guide on the inner spiritual Path, he appears in his Radiant Form (Guru Dev) and accompanies the spirit when it transcends the body consciousness while living or at the time of death, and as a veritable Master of Truth (Satguru) he works out the Divine Plan. The need for such a Master-soul who can at once work on the various planes, as Guru, Guru-Dev and Satguru, cannot be over-emphasized.

In a nut-shell 'Spirituality' contents itself only with "Self-Realization" and "God-Realization". It has, therefore, nothing to do with institutionalized religions or religiosity, the outward show of religion that we mostly make nowadays.

Spirituality may be distinguished from sectarianism. While most of the great religions of the world tend to become more and more sectarian in their outlook, Spirituality ever remains universal, with its appeal to people of all religions who can come to and join this Studium Generale or Universal Mystery School for practical training. As opposed to the sealed or codified religions, Spirituality is an open book of God, with the living touch of the Masters who present it from age to age in the spirit of the age. In this scientific age, it is presented as any other science, with mathematical precision and results verifiable on scientific lines.

WHAT IT IS

The term 'Spirituality' is not to be confused with:

- (i) Spiritism, or belief in the existence of spirits apart from matter, which, when disembodied, haunt the nether regions as ghosts, or the lower planes of the astral regions as angels.
- (ii) Spiritualism, or belief in the survival of the human personality and in communication between the living and those who have 'passed on', in the form of spirit rapping, planchette writing, etc.
- (iii) Mesmerism, or producing a state of trance by the consciously exerted 'animal magnetism' of the operator so as to subordinate the willpower of his subject.
- (iv) Hypnotism, which produces a kind of deep sleep in which the consciousness is suspended and the patient is made susceptible to the suggestions of the hypnotist.

SPIRITUALITY

Spirituality, on the contrary, is the science of developing Higher Consciousness in Man on the level of the soul, and making one transcend from mere body consciousness into Cosmic Consciousness and further on into Super Consciousness, so as to enable one to understand the working of the Divine Plan.

With these few words, I would request the seeker after Truth to carefully peruse and study the pages that follow, so as to understand the true significance of the most important and yet mostly neglected subject, the subject of Spirituality.

WHAT IT IS

I SPIRITUALITY

MAN IS OLDER than all philosophies and religions, which in fact were originally intended, and later on fashioned and developed, for his moral and spiritual well-being so that he may ultimately attain salvation or freedom from the bondage of mind and matter. But, in spite of riches, moral codes, and the vast acquisition of learning, knowledge and wisdom, he is not really satisfied with life, because he has not been able to realize the Fundamental Truth of Love which lies at the core of all religions.

God made man and man made religions. Religions, then, are for man and not man for religions. The various religions, Hinduism, Buddhism, Christianity, Islam, Sikhism and others, came into existence in course of time to serve the primary human need according to the exigencies of the then prevailing conditions. If we travel back along the stream of time, we find no trace of the Sikhs beyond five hundred years ago, of the Muslims beyond fourteen hundred years, of the Christians beyond two thousand years, of the Buddhists and the Jains beyond five or six thousand years. Before the advent of the Aryan tribes many races appeared and disappeared on the scene of life. But man has ever remained a man, the lord of created things, in all times and in all climes, whether in the East or in the West, always and everywhere the same, an ensouled body or embodied soul with no distinctions of caste, creed or colour in his essential nature. The inner self in him is of the same essence as of God.

“The spirit in man is of the same essence as the All Pervading Spirit.” —Gond Kabir

“All creatures are products from one and the same Jauhar (Essence).” —Sheikh Saadi

Every country and every age has had its sages and seers. Corruption and deterioration are the natural features of time, and prophets appear time and again to set things in order. All religions owe their birth to the teachings of such Master-souls. The aim and purpose of the various religious orders has ever been the same — to provide a Way-back to God, to find the missing link between God and man. They are thus a means to an end and not the end in themselves. But in actual practice we find that none of them affords any high degree of satisfaction. The fault lies not with the religions but with those who administer them to the people.

WHAT IT IS

II TRUE RELIGION IS UNIVERSAL LOVE AND REMEMBRANCE OF GOD

What is true religion? This is the most natural question with man, and each one is confronted with it at one stage or another. We have with us hundreds and thousands of scriptures and treatises dealing with the vital problems of life, but they are not at one in their reply to this baffling question. We have, therefore, to carry on our investigation and our search for a 'correct solution,' and there can be only one. But before we launch upon this quest, we must first know the purpose of religion or Dharma. The objective which all the religions place before us is, however, one and the same — Divine Beatitude and the Beatific Vision of the Lord. All religions, then, aim at the same target, like so many archers. If we are really sincere in our profession of love for God, we must have love for God's creation, because the Creator and His creation are identical. We cannot love the one and hate the other. All the saints and sages work on this principle and love humanity as such, no matter whether one believes in God or does not, for they draw no distinction between theists and atheists or agnostics. They believe in the one great family of God and all are dear to Them, in spite of seeming differences in non-essentials of life.

SPIRITUALITY

But what do we actually see in the world? Having forgotten the basic truth of love working at the root of all religions, we are cut off from the sheet-anchor and are afloat rudderless on the sea of life. Each one of us tries to catch at a straw to save himself. The natural result is that after a brief struggle with chance winds and waters, we sink into the great oblivion, without solving the riddle of life — whence we come and where we are bound, or the why and wherefore of human life.

Love, then, is the only true religion. Saint Paul, addressing the Galatians, said: “By love, serve one another.” (Galatians V:13). Leigh Hunt declared: “One who serves his fellow men, loves God and is the true beloved of God.” Similarly Samuel Taylor Coleridge, in his famous poem Rime of the Ancient Mariner, informed us:

“He prayeth best who loveth best,
All things both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He made and loveth all.”

St. John, in his Epistle (I John IV:8), wrote: “He that loveth not, knoweth not God, for God is Love.” Christ, the great Apostle of peace, emphatically laid down a cardinal principle of life in His memorable words: “Love thy neighbour as thyself.” And again He emphatically declared: “Love, and all things shall be added unto thee.”

WHAT IT IS

Sheikh Saadi, a Muslim divine, taught the same thing: "As the limbs of a body are knit together so are the children of God. They are born of the same essence. Should any one of them suffer from ague, the others too become restless."

Sheikh Farid and other saints also repeated this truth in the same strain: "If thou wishest to meet thy Beloved (God.), injure not anyone's feelings."
—Shalok Farid

Guru Gobind Singh, the tenth guru of the Sikhs, stated: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee that God manifests Himself to one who loves." God is Love, our soul is of the same essence as of God, so it is Love, and the Way back to God is also through Love.

Again, it is said: "The Creator and His creation are one. Do no injury to His creation, O Nandlal, and incur not the wrath of God."
—Bhai Nand Lal

All the holy and pious devotees have but one religion, the religion of devotion to God and love for His creation. A man is no better than a sheep or goat if he is not actuated by feelings of love and affection for his fellow men and does not share in their joys and sorrows, and lends not a helping hand in their toils and troubles. If instead of human sympathy, we are filled with ill will, hatred, jealousy, envy and animosity, and are charged with greed, avarice and self-love, and are swayed by pride and prejudices, we cannot have a pure heart capable of reflecting the light of God in us, nor can we have true happiness and bliss.

Man is the roof and crown of the creation, endowed as he is with the spirit of God. The more one loves his fellow beings, the nearer one gets to the Creator. All the creation is His manifestation, and His spirit is immanent in all forms and patterns. All colours take their hue from Him. All-Pervading, His spirit works everywhere and there is no place without Him.

“All reflect the Self-Source Light,
Oh, none is good or bad.”

—Parbhati Kabir

“The part is in the whole, and the whole in the part, Where then the difference, when both reflect the One?”

—Parbhati Kabir

The difference in forms, in modes of life, in clothing and in outer observances are all due to physiological conditions and cannot affect the inner working of the soul; and they fade into vapourous nothings when one rises above the body-consciousness and enters the Divine Ground at the seat of the soul.

WHAT IT IS

Christ always taught: "Love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind." "Love thy neighbour as thyself..... Love thine enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you, that ye may be the children of your Father which is in Heaven. Be ye perfect even as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect."

—Matt. 5:44-48

This, in fact, is true religion, true devotion and true meditation.

The human heart is the seat of God. It has been given to man in trust. It must therefore be kept neat and clean, for then alone can it reflect His light and make life truly blessed. The body is the temple of God. We keep man-made temples meticulously neat and clean but pay scant attention to the holy temple of God which we really are.

There is just one Creative Principle for the entire creation. All are born of the light of God and the same light shines forth in all; and, as such, none of His creatures can be dubbed 'evil.' Thomas á Kempis, in Imitation of Christ, writes: "From One Word Proceed all things and all things tell of Him." The Hindus call this Creative Principle 'Naad,' the Muslims call it 'Kalma,' and the Sikhs 'Naam.' "Truth is one and only one, though sages describe it variously," is the memorable Upanishadic text.

Sheikh Saadi tells us: "No religion is higher than the service of the people. The rosary, the altar and the apparel give not any merit. My Beloved is in all hearts and no heart is without Him. Blessed indeed is the heart that manifests Him. Know for certain that God resides in all hearts and hence every heart needs to be respected."

"No better than quarry stone is the Kaaba of Khalil,

The Kaaba of the human heart provides God a seat.

Of all pilgrimages, the one to the human heart is true,

It gives more of merit than the countless Mecca trips will do."

This is what the great saint, Maulana Rumi, advises: "O man, circumambulate the secret Kaaba of the heart, unlike the Kaaba of Khalil — for God made the Kaaba of the human heart."

This is what a great saint, named Maghrabi Sahib, gave out: "The performance of countless austerities and penances, each followed by acts of charity; the observance of innumerable fasts, each attended with thousands of prayers and keeping of sleepless vigils for myriads of nights, will not be of any avail to thee if thou injurest the feelings of a single individual."

Again, Hafiz cautions: "Drink wine to your heart's content, burn down the holy Quran and consign to the flames even the sacred Kaaba if you will, but injure not the feelings of any man." The things referred to are considered as sins, but Hafiz says that it is much better to commit them than to injure the feelings of any man, which is the most heinous sin of them all.

Sheikh Saadi, a Muslim divine, affirms:

"The Grace of God never descends until ye love His creation;

God forgives only those who work for the good of His creation."

ALL MEN HAVE EQUAL PRIVILEGES FROM GOD

All persons irrespective of sex, colour, caste or creed; all men rich or poor, high or low, come into the world the same way. Born, as he is, from the mother's womb by the union of sperm and ovum, each one sees the light of the day after a period of gestation.

Kabir Sahib, a great Indian saint, while addressing a high caste priest, told him: "O Brahman, should you claim high birth and on that account special privileges, you ought to have been born in a way different from that of the rest.”

Again, there is a marked likeness in the physical attributes of all men whether in the East or the West. Each one is gifted with an equal number of organs and senses. All are moved and actuated by similar impulses and instincts. The weather conditions affect them all alike. All enjoy freely the gifts of Dame Nature and participate in Her boundless bounties — light, air, water and food, etc.

In every way, similarity runs through the entire creation. All persons, irrespective of their nationalities or colours, are gifted with bodies composed of five elements: earth, water, fire, air and ether, and live alike on this earth under the canopy of the blue sky. Disease, decay and death come to all in just the same way. No one escapes the ravages of time. So also do the remedies work in each case. God has made no distinction between man and man. Man alone is responsible for all kinds of distinctions and differences of caste, colour and creed, splitting humanity into narrow grooves of classes, groups, sects and nationalities.

RELIGIOUS DIFFERENCES

All apparent religious differences are man-made and are the result of narrowness and bigotry.

Saints and seers have one common message for the entire world. Their message is one of Universal Love. No one, indeed, can prove his love of God unless he knows how to love his fellow beings. Just as physical maladies wreck the human body, so do mental perversities. The latter so poison the circulatory system in the body, that one is badly affected by greed, selfishness, hatred, ill will and animosity, which in turn lead to perverted outlook on life. Thus man is dragged down to the level of beasts, nay, at times, man descends even lower than the beasts. Very often, the result is social and economic disintegration.

Whenever Master-souls come into the world, they tell us that all religious differences are the outcome of ignorance, individual whim, religious vanity or spiritual egotism. So-called leaders in every religion suffer from misguided fervour and narrow prejudices, so that they cannot possibly take a detached view of things around them. On the contrary, they see the world through the smoke-coloured glasses they have provided for themselves. They have no toleration for things and conditions that are not in accord with the rigid creeds of their organized sectarian or religious orders.

There is only one world-embracing universal religion, the religion of Love, based on the great fundamental truth — the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. We have, through self-interest, petty prejudices and befogged understanding, carved out narrow sectarian principalities. We have raised around us hedges and walls of hatred and antagonism, thus dividing man from man, class from class, nation from nation, and country from country. In this connection, Hafiz, a great Mohammedan saint, stated:

“One Reality shines both in Islam and Kufar (the man of faith, and a heretic) and all the seeming differences in the various orders are, in fact, vapourous nothings.

“It is through sheer prejudice that the Brahmans and the Sheikhs (religious heads of Hinduism and Islam, respectively) have now different drinking bowls, though in a wine-bar there is only one butler (the God-man), dispensing the same wine (of Divine Love) from the same flagon to the various tipplers at the table.”

Saints tell us that there is only one God of the entire universe. The Upanishads say the same thing: “Truth is one, though sages call it variously.” He is the God of the whole creation and not of one religion or the other. There is, in fact, no difference between Karta (the One True Creator) of the Hindus and Karim (Merciful) of the Muslims, Ram (Sustainer of the Hindus) and Rahim (Compassionate of the Muslims). All these names are descriptive of the various attributes of God and were coined by sages, saints, rishis and munis of different denominations in their own respective languages. The Nameless Reality is One but responds to the calls of all by any name by which any individual may invoke that Power.

“The Nameless One has many names. He doth attend, by whatsoever name He is addressed.”

—Maulvi Rumi

One must carefully avoid the dangers of doubt and skepticism. God alone need be worshipped and adored. He is the God of all, and each one is His manifestation. The same life impulse works in all, and each is lighted by the same light. The entire humanity constitutes a single class by itself. Guru Gobind Singh says in this context:

“Some keep shaven crowns, while others robe themselves in flame-coloured apparel, and still others call themselves Jogis (a sect that wears wooden earrings in their ears and are ever on the march from stage to stage). Again, some are observing celibacy in quest of the Lord, while others perform penances and strict austerities. Some are Hindus and some are Turks, while others are Imams, Rafzi or followers of any other saint. With all these differences in nomenclature, they at the root are all One — mankind — to wit, men born of and embedded in God. Call Him the Creator, the Merciful, the Donor or Rahim, for that makes no difference at all — take this as a settled truth and be not therefore bewildered by diversity in names. They all serve and worship the same God, the same Lord and Master of the Universe. All of them manifest the image of the same God and exist simply by His Love and Light alone. Many a name has the Nameless One; addressed in any, He doth attend.”

REMEMBRANCE OF GOD

Remembrance of God is the main thing before us to find the Way back to Him. The purpose of all devotional exercises, places of worship and pilgrimages is the same. The human body is the veritable temple of God.

There is one and only one common objective of the various forms of devotion as prescribed in different scriptures: How to love the Lord and how to realize Him. Various writers, in different times and different climes, have in their own way pointed out this Path leading to God. It may be likened to a game of archery in which so many archers participate and discharge their arrows at the common target. An Indian saint said: "Each one in his own way talks to us of his own Beloved. O Rajab! the target is one but the archers are countless."

In the holy Quran (Surat Nahal — 5th Raku) it is mentioned that from time to time different forms of worship were introduced by God-sent Master-souls according to the needs of the age in which they lived. Omar Khayyam, a great Persian Sufi poet, discloses: "The temples and the mosques, or the churches and the synagogues, are alike for the worship of God. The Gong and Conch perpetually produce therein rapturous strains of the Music of Life. The Arch in the mosques, the Cross in the churches, the Altar in the temples and the Lamp in the synagogues are just different symbols for the worship of the Divine Beloved."

God cannot be realized outside oneself, even in the holy places of worship, no matter what their denomination might be. To realize Him, one has to enter into the laboratory of the human body which, in the truest sense of the word, is the temple of God. Real worship and devotion are purely internal and mental processes, unconnected with and independent of any and everything outside the human frame. All that is required is purity of mind. With an ethical background, one can worship God anywhere under the blue sky, for the whole world is a vast temple of God, and there is no place without Him, including the specific places of worship described above. In fact, wheresoever devotion kneels in humility, that place becomes sanctified.

In the holy Quran (Albukar) it is mentioned: "All the universe is His. Turn wheresoever one may, East or West, one would face God, for He is both Omnipresent and Omniscient." Again: "For the ignorant, God lives only in man-made temples, mosques or churches, but the really awakened find Him only within themselves — the God-made temple of the human body."

Al-Nisae Sahib affirmed: "For me the whole world is a holy mosque; wherever the fixed time of prayer comes up, my followers may perform their prayers then and there."

"All is holy where devotion kneels."

—Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr.

Maghrabi Sahib tells us: "Thy Beloved is within thee but thou art ignorant of it and goest to find Him without, from place to place. To go to a mosque in search of one who is the very soul of thy soul, is nothing short of tragic waste of time. The ignorant bow down before a mosque, while the wise are engaged in purifying the mind, which is the throne of God Himself." The former is just sham and tinsel, and the latter is the actual reality.

WHAT IT IS

The true Kaaba or the altar of worship is, therefore, the Satguru — a personality in whom the light of God shines. Tulsi Sahib says: “Woe be to thee, O indweller of the God-made mosque, for thou goest for worship to the man-made temple.” Kabir Sahib also speaks thus: “As Kabir proceeded on a pilgrimage to Mecca, God met him on the way and He reprimanded him and sternly enquired as to who told him that He was there and not here.” Guru Amar Dass said: “This body is the veritable temple of God. In it alone shines the Light of God.” (Parbhati M.3). Christ also stated: “Know ye not that ye are the temple of God and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you.” (I Corinthians 3:16.) And again, “Ye are the temple of the living God.” (II Corinthians 6:16.)

Hafiz of Shiraz spoke in the same terms: “The object of my going to the temple or the mosque is to unite with thee, O Lord! Except this, there is no other idea in it.” Again he maintained: “Say not that Kaaba is better than a temple. In fact, that place alone is the best where one may witness the glory of his Beloved.”

Guru Gobind Singh, the tenth Guru of the Sikhs, clearly puts it down thus: “There is no difference between a dera and a mosque, between Puja (Hindu way of worship) and Namaz (Mohammedan form of prayer), as both serve the same purpose. All mankind are one and the same and the idea of diversity is but a myth.

SPIRITUALITY

The same God has created the Angels and the Spirits, as also the Turks and the Hindus, and in fact, men of all denominations. The outer variety in mankind is the result of physiological conditions prevailing in the various parts of the world. Yet, all of them are on the same pattern, with similar eyes, ears, bodies, and their physical structure is made out of the five elements: earth, water, fire, air and ether. Allah of the Muslims and Alekh of the Hindus are the names of the same Entity. The Puranas and the Quran speak of Him alone.”

In fact all religions extant on earth point to the same Reality. In all scriptures it is said that a search for Him in the outside world is of no avail, and it is only through the Grace of a Master or the Guru that the Lord is made manifest within. All places of worship, wherever these may be, are made of water and clay. When God is Omnipresent, why need one seek Him in temples and mosques alone? He is right within us, nay, is the very soul of our soul and we live and have our being in Him. But this Truth dawns only when a Sant-Satguru (Master-soul) helps in bringing it home to us through actual experience.

“Where shall I go, when I see His glory within?

The mind saturated in Him has no distractions.

WHAT IT IS

One day greatly obsessed, I prepared a sandal paste,

And started for the abode of Brahma, when the Master told me that He dwelt in the folds of the mind."

"Wherever I go, I see houses of water and clay;

And yet I see Thee in fullness in everything.

I have searched for Thee in the Vedas and the Puranas, and all scriptures repeat the same.

Why should I wander elsewhere when Thou art right here?"

"O Satguru! I would like to make a holocaust of myself at Thy feet,

For Thou hath saved me from all delusions and snapped all bonds,

Ramanand now lives and rests in Brahma,

The Word of the Master burns to ashes myriads of Karmas."

—Basant Ramanand

Guru Arjan stated: "Some address Him as Ram and some as Khuda. Some call Him Gosain and others Allah. He is the Kaaran and Karim or the Kirpa Dhar Rahim. He is the Creator giving out merciful glances all the world over. Some go for a bath to the sacred rivers, while others go for a Haj (pilgrimage to Mecca). Some worship Him and some bow their heads in silent adoration. Some engage in the study of the Vedas and some read sacred books of other religions. Some put on white raiments and some the blue apparel. Some are called Hindu and others Turk. But O

SPIRITUALITY

Nanak! one who has known His Will (by becoming a conscious co-worker with Him), he alone may know the mystery of God."

—Ramkali M.5

The sacred lore of the Hindus is in Sanskrit or in Hindi, and that of the Mohammedans, in Arabic or in Persian. Guru Granth Sahib of the Sikhs is in Punjabi, while the Bible of the Christians is in Hebrew, Greek, Latin and English. The various expositions, the commentaries and annotations of these are in the different languages that were in common vogue at one time or another. All these scriptures, whatever their language (for language counts not with God), simply serve the purpose of creating in us a desire, a yearning, a craving, a longing and love for God. They are the means and not the end, for God is an Unwritten Law and His is an Unspoken language. He is beyond all tongues, for none can reach Him. No particular tongue has any special merit, for it is just a vehicle of expression and nothing else, so that one may narrate and listen to the loving stories of God. Hafiz therefore beautifully indicates:

"O Hafiz! in the matter of love, there is no difference between Turkish and Arabic or other languages. The tales of love may be narrated in any of the languages that may be known to thee."

WHAT IT IS

The various peoples of the different lands are just like so many sons of the same Father and flowers of the same garden, though gifted with different colours and fragrance. Living in the lap of the same Dame Nature and under the same blue canopy, we have narrowed ourselves through petty prejudices and short-sighted vision, into various religious sects and orders. Religion, as the word literally implies, is a 'Way-back' or relinking with the Source, Instead of vouchsafing liberation, religion has, like the proverbial 'Blanket-bear,' taken hold of us in its iron grip, from which it is not possible to escape.

To explain the proverbial expression 'Blanket-bear': A bear was swimming down a river, when a man standing on the bank mistook it for a blanket, and jumped into the water to fetch it out. But when he caught hold of it he discovered his mistake, and when he wanted to swim back, he could not do so, for the bear had caught hold of him instead in his strong grip and would not let him go. Those standing on the side of the stream asked him to come back. He said he would like to come back, but the blanket-bear would not let him go. Such is the condition in which the people of the workaday world are drifting these days. The awakened ones revolt at this sad state of affairs. When both the mosque and the temple constitute the house of God and are lighted by the Light of God, why should there be so much bother about them?

The object of worship in a temple or in a mosque, or in any other religious place, is to find out the same Beloved. When, in spite of apparent differences in form, shape and colour, two stones, if struck together, produce the same sparks, it is strange that two different types of worshippers fail to produce the same result. It is simply because neither of them has understood real worship.

All religions have as their ideal, self-knowledge and God-realization, but in the very name of their respective religions, the Brahmans and the Sheikhs (the religious heads of the Hindus and the Mohammedans) and the heads of other sects — all preach hatred and ill will against one another.

The institution of paid preachers has in these days converted religious centres into commercialized markets with stock-in-trade of falsehood, hypocrisy and deceit. Truth, faith and devotion have been banished from them. True lovers of God, therefore, disassociate themselves from such a horrible state of things.

Bulleh Shah pathetically describes this sad state of affairs of his time as "Dharamshalas (places of worship) serve as entrepots for the swindlers, and Thakur-Dwaras (houses of God) as houses for the thugs and cheats. Mosques shelter merciless butchers, while the true lovers of God stand apart from all these."

The seeds of enmity and hatred between man and man are sown by the very people who themselves are victims of stark ignorance. Pandora-like, they know not what mischief they unleash into the world by their thoughtless utterances. Such persons are styled in the scriptures as Manmukh, or the mouthpiece of the mind, for they do things thoughtlessly and their actions are all steeped in and saturated with selfish greed. Their tongues wag, cutting deep chasms right and left into the very vitals of the people, and injecting poison into the depths of their minds. Whosoever comes into contact with them and drinks of their words, not only catches the infection of discord and inharmony, but becomes blood-thirsty towards his own kith and kin. Mohammedans call such persons Kafirs (heretics).

The sole object of such Manmukhs (slaves of the mind) or Kafirs (heretics) is to ingratiate themselves into name and fame, to trample down the legitimate rights of others, with a view to amassing for themselves ill-gotten gains, and to possess pelf and power which do not really belong to them.

As opposed to Manmukhs or Kafirs, there are the Gurmukhs (or the mouthpiece of Guru). They are the prototype of philanthropy and the reservoirs of love, shedding the beneficent light of love around their fellow beings. They recognize the essential unity of all humanity embedded as it is in the root cause of God. Islam calls such people 'Momins.' "They have regard and respect not only for the Prophet of Islam but for the prophets of all other religions whose names have been mentioned in the Quran, as also for those whose names have not been mentioned therein." They see the essential unifying link that runs through all, and do not look to the seeming differences in non-essentials.

THE FUNDAMENTAL TRUTHS

These are common in all religions and point the same way. Religious truths, whether social, ethical or spiritual, have a common ideal and a common objective. Man should lead an ethical life, serve mankind, be of help to all others in this earthly sojourn, and should know himself and then develop God-knowledge and God-consciousness leading ultimately to God-head. The word religion, as the term indicates, is a great binding force that links man back to his Creator, Whom he, by his entire absorption in the mundane affairs of life, has entirely forgotten through having become identified with the world. Love of man and love of God, as also faith in God and living contact with 'God-inaction' or the 'Holy Ghost,' 'Ekaunkar' or the 'Word,' is the universal religion that has been given to the world by the saints from age to age. It is eternal and unchangeable for all times.

WHAT IT IS

All the scriptures, the world over, teach the same thing, namely, that one should engage in good and pious acts, take hold of the saving life-chord within and, riding on the Sound-current, reach the home of his Father. God is the Ideal and one should worship Him with love and devotion, and people should serve one another with love. St. Paul always exhorted mankind: "By love serve one another." The Vedas tell us to remember and worship God in congregations. (Atharv Veda: 3:30-5). There is no virtue higher than to have firm faith in God, to commune with His holy Word and to render loving service to His creation. This, in fact, is the true and universal religion, common for mankind, eternal and unchangeable.

Guru Arjan, speaking of the highest and holiest Truth at the core of all religions, refers to contact with the 'Shabd Dhun,' the Sound Principle which is the primal manifestation of God and the causeless Cause of the entire creation.

"The highest and the holiest in all religions enjoins communion with the Word of God, and good actions."
—Gauri M.5

SPIRITUALITY

“There is no virtue higher than to sing of the Lord (the Divine Melody) and to associate with His elects.

O Nanak! these boons one gets only through the writ of the Most High and not otherwise.”

—Sorath M.5

It was because of this that Guru Arjan, while compiling the sacred scriptures of the Sikhs, the Granth Sahib, collected therein the sayings of the various Master-souls — Hindus, Mohammedans and Sikhs—without caring for their vocation in life, high or low. In it we find the sayings of Sant Kabir (a weaver by profession), Nam Dev (a calico-printer), Ravi Das (a cobbler), Dhanna Jat, Baba Farid (a Mohammedan), and others of the Kshatriya class. Such godly souls come into the world, untrammelled and free, with a specific mission, the dispensation of the Saving Grace of the Lord for those who listen to Them and follow Their teachings. It is a proof positive of the fact that Reality is one, though it has been named differently by different sages in different places and at different times. Such Master-souls, whenever and wherever they appear on the scene of life, impart to the erring humanity lessons in humanitarianism and godliness and instil in the people the love of man and God, but above all put them on the Path leading Godwards. They, imbued with the spirit of God, are freethinkers and try to make mankind free from the watertight and narrow limitations of fossilized religions and religious beliefs, so that they may bask in the sunshine of God and sing of His glory.

WHAT IT IS

Saints look after and take charge of the souls and not of the raiment of the body, with its various denominational hallmarks. They try to form and cement the brotherhood of man and tell us of "The Way Out" of the body, by the process of "Soul-withdrawal," and "The Way In" to the spiritual world beyond, by means of a contact with the Holy Ghost or Naam. They come to unite individual souls with God and not to disrupt this relationship wheresoever it is already in existence.

Their sole object is to unite all mankind in the silken bonds of love and not to create schisms and splits. Maulana Rumi tells us that God, speaking to Moses, reprimanded him with the words:

"I sent you into the world to unite people unto Me,

And not to lead astray such as were already united with Me."

No religious barriers stand in the way of God-men. They serve as beacon lights in the stormy sea of life. In fact, they have love for all religions and actually give life and light to them all, without which these gradually, in course of time, grow dull, drab and lifeless like a body without the life-giving Spirit.

SPIRITUALITY

Guru Nanak, for instance, went on pilgrimages to far-off Mecca in Arabia, to Sangladip, or Ceylon, in the South, and Burma and China in the East. He gave to the people everywhere the benefit of his teachings the same as he did to Hindus in Benares and Hardwar, the sacred places of Hindus. He carried the same message of Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man to every place. God-men love all the saints, past and present, irrespective of creed or colour. God-intoxicated people sit together as tipplers in the tavern of God. There existed a fraternal relationship between Guru Arjan, Hazrat Mian Mir and Bhagat Chhajju. Guru Har Gobind provided a mosque for worship for the Muslims. Guru Gobind Singh had equal love for the Hindus, the Muslims and men of all other denominations. When he was hemmed in by the Turks on the plain of Machhiwara, it was the Muslims who helped him out of the trying impasse and saved his life. Bhai Kanahya Singh, one of his followers, supplied drinking water and tended alike to the wounded Muslim and Hindu soldiers on the field of battle. When complained against by the ignorant Sikhs for his alleged treacherous conduct, he told the Master that as he flitted about on the field with his water-skin to serve the thirsty and the dying, he witnessed in one and all alike the same light as was in the Master. The Guru thereupon blessed him for having correctly imbibed his teachings.

WHAT IT IS

“When once the ignorance is dispelled, all distinctions between the Hindus and the Muslims, and in fact among all the sectarian people, drop off and vanish like airy nothings.”

—Guru Gobind Singh

God is the substratum and life-principle for the entire creation — even of the heretics and the agnostics. As He loves all, so do saints who are dyed in His very colour. Once Moses, sharing a meal with someone, felt a rude shock in the depth of his heart when he saw that his companion had offered no grace before taking the food; but God reprimanded him, for he had no business to be dissatisfied with one whom He (God) in his unbounded mercy provided with food. Such Master-souls have great and unbounded love for one and all, no matter if some of them be the worst of sinners, the most despised and hated by society. No person has a right to address God as Father, unless he is prepared to love his fellow beings as his brethren. All life springs from His and, as such, there should be no discrimination between high and low, the faithful and the heretic. One may not know the Father; that is a different thing, but he is born of the Father and that is all one need know and act upon.

SPIRITUALITY

PLACE OF RITES AND RITUALS IN RELIGION

Their Different Forms and Their Values

Rites and rituals as well as forms and ceremonies play an integral part in each religion. The differences in rites and rituals and in the forms and ceremonies of various religions are determined by various considerations like climatic conditions prevailing in different countries and the mode of life of the people. Let us, for instance, take the case of Arabia. It is a desert country. Owing to scarcity of water it is considered enough for an Arab to wash only his feet, hands and face before offering prayers; and where no water is available at all, he may cleanse them with sand instead, the ritual being technically known as Tayamum. Similarly, in Bikaner, another desert tract, in India, where there is dearth of water, it is commonly believed that if someone uses more than ten pounds of water in a day, he will have to account for his extravagance to God.

In the rest of India and other places where water is plentiful, no one sits for meditation without a full bath, to one's heart's content. Again, in the West, people would enter churches and attend the services bareheaded but with shoes on. In the East, it is quite the contrary. An Oriental would never enter a temple or a Gurdwara and attend the service unless he covered up his head and his feet were bare. The object in each case is, of course, the same — to maintain an attitude of respect and reverence for the holy precincts. Different modes of worship have been adopted in various parts of the world owing to climatic considerations, such as a cold climate in the West and a hot climate in the East.

All rites and rituals are correlated with the human body and are, more or less, part of social conduct. The ultimate object in each case is to secure cleanliness and awareness on the one hand, and a respectful attitude on the other, before going into the presence of God. The outer forms that one may adopt to achieve the object are immaterial to God. He loves His creatures regardless of how and in what fashion they come to Him, just as any earthly father would love his children whether they were in rich attire or in tatters.

Here is the question that naturally arises: When love is the universal religion for the entire humanity, how has mankind come to be split up into so many sectarian and watertight compartments, in spite of the fundamental unities in all religions? This segregation into groups is due to the differences in the articles of faith, which in course of time grow rigid and inelastic.

When Guru Nanak went to Mecca and preached worship of the Supreme God, the Muslims declared that there was no difference between His teachings and those of Islam. Guru Nanak then explained to them that His teachings centered around "Absolute Oneness," while theirs were hedged around with limitations and were, therefore, "Relative Oneness" only. He said that God sent into the world countless prophets and Master-souls to guide the people from time to time, and will continue to do so in the future. The law of supply and demand was always at work in Nature, as well as in man, and there could be no limitations to God's power to send mediators and reconcilers into the world. Similarly, from age to age and in different climes and countries, there sprang up sacred lore and scriptures like the Vedas, the Quran and the Bible, and there could be no end to these at any time.

God is Infinite and man as a finite being cannot possibly know His purpose and the working of His Will, nor can he adequately sing of His limitless attributes. The more one may advance towards Him, the greater he grows in His glory and greatness — too deep for human insight to penetrate and understand Him. A fish living in the ocean cannot know the depth and extent of the ocean.

"Thou art an all-knowing ocean and I, a trifling shrimp, cannot sound Thy vastness."

— Sri Rag M.I

WHAT IT IS

God is Infinite and all ideas of finitude that may be attributed to Him are, in the very nature of things, contradictions in terms — the two ideas being highly incompatible with each other. He created innumerable Brahmas, Vishnus, Shivas, Gorakhs and Naths, Ramas and Krishnas, Buddhas, Christs and Mohammeds. All of them were the torch-bearers of His light, and many more shall come, according to the needs and requirements of the time. Man being finite cannot possibly know the Infinite and His inscrutable ways whereby He fulfills His purpose. The more a person advances in mere mundane knowledge and learning, the more he recedes from Him, and the bounds of High Glory fade from his view.

God is indeed Limitless, but we limited beings try to limit Him in measured and restricted terms, for we cannot know Him at all until we become one with Him.

“Thou art limitless; how can we as limited beings know of Thee, O Lord. — Sorath M.5

SPIRITUALITY

III IDEAL MAN

Man is essentially a social being. He is born in society and cannot live without society. As such, the Master-souls do not interfere in his social conduct and religious mode of life. They tell us to lead a life of purity and chastity within the framework of the social order in which we are born or to which we belong, but that we should not dehumanize our human nature, which has been given to us as a sacred trust from God. The outer differences of apparel and mode of life, social or religious, should not affect and interfere with the inner life in man, which is the same within the folds of every human breast. They emphatically deal with man as man (an individual as opposed to a social being) and try to inculcate in him the importance of cultivating qualities that go to make him an ideal man, full of love for God as Father and His creatures as his brethren. They say that man should engage in honest pursuits, making an honest living, both for himself and his family, love all sentient beings, and treat them with loving sympathy.

Man is the roof and crown of the entire creation. He is an embodied soul. From the bodily point of view, he must live and act as an ideal man would, and also from the point of view of the Spirit, which is in essence the same as God.

WHAT IT IS

Kabir informed us: "Soul is the same essence as that of God." He must manifest Godhead or God's light. Christ therefore declares:

"The light (of Spirit) shineth in darkness (body) and the darkness comprehendeth it not."

—St. John 1-15

"Take heed that the light which is in thee be not darkness."

—Luke 11-35

"Be ye perfect as thy Father in heaven is perfect."

—Matt. 5-48.

Man and God are fully embedded in each other. It, therefore, behooves man to reflect the Light of God around him. God is the soul of his soul, and his body is the veritable temple of God. Without the light of His life, a human body is just like a husk without a kernel, useless and inconsequential trash, fit to be cremated or consigned to the grave.

"Man is an embodied Truth, for Truth is his very life.

Without the Light of Truth, how can man live?"

Again:

"God speaks through a human pole,
Without such a pole, how can He speak?"

SPIRITUALITY

Hazrat Attaar, a great Muslim Divine, says: "O man! thou art the very center of creation. In fact, the very macrocosm is in the microcosm of thy body. Thou art the living book of God, for in and through thee alone, God speaks, and reveals Himself."

If man were to take care of his latent Godhead and make it patent, a practical workaday principle, this mundane world full of evils would become a veritable Garden of Eden, or Mugam-i-Haq or Sach Khand. Then His Kingdom would come on earth as it is in Heaven, for which the Christians and others so fervently pray from day to day.

It therefore behooves us to convert this world into a veritable land of the pious, peopled by persons with purely human instincts in them, unalloyed by feelings of hatred and animosity, pride and prejudices, and impervious to satanic influences and animal passions which degrade man to the level of a beast. It would then be a world of free and loving persons, each respecting the rights of others, with no room for courts to adjudicate disputes, nor police to keep the peace, nor armies to keep down aggression. The inhabitants of the world would then be the living embodiments of the Life and Love of God, walking freely and fearlessly in Heaven's Light, dressed in pure godliness, in the land of the pious and the pure (Pakistan) and the really righteous (Khalistan). The ideal of the saints is not to depopulate the world but to humanize it.

The only ideal for man is to be perfect and complete. This would distinguish him from the imperfect and mutilated man, completely ignorant of the Godhead in himself, torn as he is by petty jealousies, avarice, greed, deceit, enmity, recriminations and all types of vices, a true abode for Satan as at present. Saint Paul states: "Ye are complete in Godhood." Every religion enjoins the worship of perfected beings who are at one with God. In the Bhagavad Gita, it is mentioned that the roots of the creation are set down in heaven, but its branches spread as far as the earth. So is the case with man. His roots too are implanted in Godhood, though he moves about and works on earth. Behind the apparent consciousness that works in the world, lies the entire mystery of the Motor Power — the great dynamo without which this outer consciousness cannot operate. We are aware of this outer ocean of consciousness only so far as it operates on the plane of senses, but the major part of it lies hidden at the root or center of the soul in the eye-focus within, and of which we are totally ignorant. It is no wonder, then, that the Master laid great stress on self-knowledge and preached that one should know of his conscious self before anything else.

SPIRITUALITY

From time to time, Master-souls come into the world and place before it the fundamental truth of the ideal man, that one must acquire all-round perfection. "Know Thyself!" has always been their slogan and a clarion call to the society steeped in stark ignorance and dead to the higher spiritual powers lying dormant in man. "Gnothi Seauton" was as much an article of faith with the ancient Greeks as "Nosce Teipsum" was with the ancient Latins. Their cry has been: "Awake, arise and stop not, until the goal is reached." All the ten Sikh Gurus, from Guru Nanak down to Guru Gobind Singh, placed before the Indian society the ideal of a Sikh (a true disciple), and of a Khalsa (the pure one) who render selfless service to humanity born of genuine love for mankind. These constitute the bedrock of spiritual life and quicken the latent spiritual aspiration in man by gradually freeing him from narrow bigotries and sense of false pride.

The Muslims gave to the world the ideal man in the form of a Momin, and the Christians, in the form of a Puritan. In fact, all Master-souls have emphasized the need of developing an ideality in man so as to raise him to the level of a superman, far above the plane of senses. Iqbal, a great Urdu poet of the Punjab, relates: "Moses went to Mount Sinai to witness the glory of God, because he was not aware of the great mystery within. O thou, the seeker after truth, seek out an ideal man — for God, too, seeks one who can truly manifest Him in the world.”

All the scriptures and all the world teachers have laid emphasis on the greatness of man, for he has vast potentialities in him, which he can, if he will, develop to any extent he may like, leading to Godhood. The pelf and power of the world are nothing in comparison to the spiritual treasures lying within man, while he, in ignorance, is like a mendicant roaming about in search of pebbles, and in the end barter away his precious life for such trash.

Ruskin, too, likewise expresses this idea: “There is no wealth but life, life including all its powers of love, joy and of admiration. That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings. That man is the richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others.”

SPIRITUALITY

IV SPIRITUALITY: ITS NEED

Wheresoever one may turn, one finds extreme tension, anxiety and suspense prevailing everywhere. The root cause of this universal chaos is restlessness in individual minds. Man has made tremendous progress in various spheres of life, but unfortunately has not cared to know anything about the spirit within and is altogether ignorant about it. He has unravelled the mysteries of the starry welkin, sounded the depths of the seas, delved deep into the bowels of the earth, braved the blinding blizzards of snowy Mount Everest, and is now out exploring space so as to establish interplanetary relations, but sad to say, has not found out the mystery of the human soul within him. He has always ignored the question of questions and has studiously avoided the vital issues of life regarding self-knowledge, or the knowledge of the soul, as of no consequence.

A person may possess all the riches of the world, but if he does not know anything about his own soul, it is all in vain. The ultimate purpose of all knowledge is that one should know oneself. A Muslim divine, in this context, pronounces:

WHAT IT IS

“The be-all and end-all of knowledge is but one,
That one may know the real worth of one’s soul,
Thou knowest the value of everything else,
But what a folly that thou knowest not thine own value.”

What a pity it is that we have made wonderful progress in all walks of life, but woefully lack self-knowledge, in the light and life of which we actually live and have our very being. By ignorance of the vital reality in us, it is no wonder that we have made fools of ourselves. Christ also spoke of the same thing: “What does it profit a man to gain possession of the whole world and to lose his own soul?”

A part remains just a part until it merges into the whole and loses its own individuality in its fountainhead or source. A mountain stream in its downward course bubbles hard, frets and fumes, until it falls into the ocean. So is the case with an individual spirit. Not knowing its essential nature, it knows not even its own source and so it frets and fumes, as its stream of life splashes along its stony bed, strewn with big boulders and submerged rocks. Individual restlessness is reflected in the restlessness that we see among the peoples of the world. Man has forgotten the great fundamental truth — the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

SPIRITUALITY

Hence, there is clash between man and man, class and class, society and society, and country and country.

The crying need of the hour is to give a new orientation to the ancient science of spirituality and to tell the people how to live a spiritual life. The entire humanity is steeped in ignorance. Most of the people in the world live a life of selfishness and are bent upon enriching themselves at the cost of others; but they, too, stand bewildered as if trapped between two millstones: (i) Truth scientifically explained and taught by the Masters, and (ii) the rigid creeds, or the fossilized remains of religion, taught mostly by ignorant religious fanatics. The so-called teachers and preachers who should guide aright the erring mankind are themselves victims of the Grand Delusion and know not where they stand and what they have to do.

Most of us are attracted and irresistibly drawn by the glamour of the outer life, the life of the senses, and honestly believe in the Epicurean doctrine of "eat, drink and be merry." We see no need of God at all, the very substratum of the Universe. We have our faith pinned to the walnut shell and do not see the kernel within. We want to swallow the shell and not the sweet and delicious kernel it protects within its hard case. Our so-called search for God, too, is on the plane of the sense, in the world without. We look for Him on snow-capped mountain tops, in waters of the sacred rivers, in burning desert sands, in temples, mosques, churches, and there we find Him not. The more we search for Him without, the more He eludes us; He is now practically lost to us, and we have lost all faith in Him.

“O seekers after God! you have lost God,
You have lost Him in the very whirlpool of the senses.”

In such a sad predicament, Master-souls come into the world, from time to time, to lead the erring humanity. Their message is one of hope and not of despair. They come not to break the law but to fulfil the law — the law of Redemption through Grace. They have unbounded love for all the religions and utter not a word against any. On the other hand, They try to reorientate all religions alike, transfuse fresh blood into their anemic vitals, resuscitate the decaying nerves and tissues, infuse a glow of life-impulse and to restore them to the high pedestals from whence they have fallen. They simply give the correct lead and point to the right path, which lies within and not without, the path that is the most ancient (Sanatan) and is coeval with creation itself, and which is the most natural (Sahaj). It is the Path laid down by the Creator Himself and is not man-made. They tell us that

SPIRITUALITY

God exists and that all religions, as made by man, have one object only: an approach to God.

The word religion is derived from a Latin root ligare with its derivative, ligament, which means to bind. The prefix “re” denotes again. So the word religion connotes to bind again, what has been sundered, separated and detached, i.e. bind back the soul to the Oversoul or God or whatever name we may give to the Source — the Fountainhead of all life. True religion, in this sense, is a common heritage of mankind; and he alone is truly religious, a true Bhagat or devotee, a true Sikh or disciple, a true Mohammedan or a true Christian, who has linked his soul with the Power of God within him. The Redeemers tell us that the human body is the true temple of God, for God made man after His own image. Both the spirit (the soul) and God (the Oversoul) reside in this body, but, unfortunately, the two are separated from each other by an iron curtain of egotism, or the self-assertive will in man.

“Together do the two dwell in close association, in the same abode.

But strange as it may seem, the two have never conversed with each other.” — Gauri M.5

In other words, it may be said that the bride (soul) and the bridegroom (God) are lying together on the same bridal bed, but have not, through the ages, seen each other's faces.

WHAT IT IS

“On the one and the same bed lies the beloved, but woe betide the spouse that snores deeply while the consort watches over her all the time.”
—Suhi M.5

All religions, in course of time, unfortunately, lose sight of the original idea and become just a code of social conduct or at the most a compendium of ethical and moral principles. Saints, therefore, do not interfere with fossilized remains of the religions, for many, of necessity, must conform to and live in one or the other social order. They point to the original common ideal of all religions: the Inner Path leading to God, and tell us how to reach God.

V

RELIGION: WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT HAS BECOME

Religion, far from being a manual of spiritual truths, is nowadays conceived to be the study of scriptures, epics and biographies of ancient sages; the inferential, needed knowledge about the existence of God, dissertations and expositions of the various schools of thought as propounded by philosophers in different times and in different climes. Some people are engaged in reconciling the new thought with the old, while others lay stress upon the rules of social conduct and ethical principles as the be-all and end-all of religion. The so-called and self-styled leaders of religious thought are engaged in shouting about the importance of one or the other tenets to which they tenaciously cling. Still others consider that salvation can be had by blind faith in the ancient Master-souls who have already played out their respective roles and have left this sub-lunary planet hundreds, or even thousands, of years ago. Each one of these is so zealous in his own way that he has lost sight of the real truth, and the result is religious bigotry, persecution, inquisitorial courts, pillory, burning at the stake — and the worst of it is that all this is done in the blessed name of religion.

WHAT IT IS

Religion, in fact, is the Way back to God or linking the soul with Oversoul. It is the Way, the Path, that should lead the soul to God. But alas! through narrow prejudices, befogged understanding and petty-mindedness, it is now considered enough that one should conform to the observance of certain rites and rituals, performance of deeds of merit, wearing of particular type of apparel, keeping certain distinctive marks on the body, and following various rules of social conduct from birth till death, or reciting specific mantras and chanting verses on particular occasions.

While the whole world is busy with outer pursuits of one kind or another, the Kingdom of God lies neglected within — a lost province — and no one turns towards it. The Master-souls point to this Kingdom, and the scriptures also speak of it in unambiguous terms. But owing to a dearth of practical persons who have realized the Truth by transcending the bodily and mental limitations, the Reality has slipped through our grasp. Religion, in the true sense, has lost its significance and has become encrusted with a mass of ceremonial and ritualistic verbiage.

There is hardly a person who can tell us of the Way within the body, the method of approach to it, the prerequisites for the aspirants, and above all, be an unerring and a sure Guide on the Way from plane to plane, until the goal is reached. On the contrary, many teachers who every day cross us by the multitude, cannot help us to get out of the Grand Delusion. They simply ask us to pin our faith to the teachings of one or other of the ancient sages, but cannot instruct us about the way whereby those sages realized the Truth and how we can do likewise. Or else they declare that one or the other of the scriptures is a direct revelation from God, and prescribe its study as a course of discipline for the soul, little knowing that a mere record of the spiritual experiences of their authors cannot give us the benefit of the same unless we are able to make those experiences our own.

The scriptures may tell us of the Way out and may even describe the spiritual journey, but they cannot actually put us on the Path, resolve our doubts and take us from plane to plane — all of which lies far beyond the scope of words; nor can they save us from the pitfalls and dangers that lurk on the Way. Learned as they are, they can quote scriptures in support of what they allege, but are utterly lost when it comes to practical training and guidance required for self-realization and God-realization, of which they are as ignorant as are their audience or their followers.

The truth is that unless a person, in full consciousness, can link his soul with Oversoul or

WHAT IT IS

God, all his deeds and acts (individual or social), howsoever meritorious in themselves, cannot be of much avail to him. God is the Ocean of utmost and restful silence. So long as we cannot have this restful silence within us, the soul cannot listen to the Voice of Silence arising out of the greatest depths of Silence. By following that Voice we can reach the source and fountainhead of the Great Silence called God, and be blessed forever. This Grand Silence is the Reality, the Unchangeable Permanence, the Truth or God, call It whatever we may. It can be realized and experienced by the individual soul but cannot be comprehended by the mind or the intellect, limited as these are by time, space, causation, etc., working in the outer world, characterized by these alone. One may bathe in the Limitless Ocean within, but cannot, even by flights of fancy, have any idea of it.

“One cannot comprehend Him through reason, even if one reasoned for ages,

One cannot achieve inner peace by outward silence, not though one sat dumb for ages.”

—Jap Ji: St. 1

While confined in the sensual plane, we cannot experience God. Only when we transcend the senses, the mind and the intellect, far beyond the physical, the mental and the casual planes, can we have the realization of the Grand Beatitude.

SPIRITUALITY

“Exalted is the Lord, and exalted His abode,
More exalted is His holy Word.
He who reaches His Height,
He alone may Glimpse Him.”

—Jap Ji: St. 24

It is only with the wings of love and devotion that we can reach God, and not by intellectual wrestlings and flights of imagination. By constant practice we have to acquire, in the first instance, a state of pure consciousness, untrammelled by vacillations of the mind and thought-currents, which are constantly and imperceptibly breaking in upon the soul and restricting it to their grasp alone. Spiritual life means a union of the soul with Oversoul. It is not an intellectual subject, although that is a stepping-stone or a means to an end.

VI
SPIRITUALITY VIS-á-VIS RELIGION

Spirituality is another name for Surat Shabd Yoga. In other words, it means union of the Surat (consciousness or soul) with the Shabd (Sound-principle, Sound-current or God-in-action). It is an inner experience of the soul and far transcends what various creeds and faiths have to tell us, or promise to give. This science is known as Sant Mat or Path of the Masters. It tells us of the fundamental of spirituality. It far excels religions as known in this age, for these teach us merely theories and beliefs, and dabble in jugglery and supernatural powers, etc. A science is not a true one if it does not reason out conclusions. A blind faith or a blind belief has no place in a spiritual science, which should work out results with mathematical precision, as any other science would do. Wherever and whenever persons have experimented in this science, they have, one and all, given their experiences and come to the same conclusions.

Spiritual life consists in peeling off layer by layer the various Koshas or sheaths, physical, astral and causal, enshrouding the spirit, until it shines forth in its pristine splendour (self-luminous and shadowless), and comes into its own and says: "I am Soul," "Aham Brahm Asmi," or "Tat Twam Asi (I am Brahm, or I am as thou art). I am a drop of the ocean of All Consciousness."

SPIRITUALITY

It is only after this consciousness dawns on the spirit, that it rushes headlong towards its Source or Fountainhead — the Ocean of Eternal Bliss. This is called Jiwan Mukti (salvation in life or life eternal). When dyed in the very colour of God, a person manifests veritable Godhood in thoughts, words and deeds. He becomes a perennial source of life, love and light for the entire humanity.

“Father and the Son are dyed in the same colour and administer the same Law unto mankind.”
—Rag Bhairon M.5

“Poor Nanak is the mouthpiece of His Beloved.”
—Rag Gauri Sukhmani M.5

“O Lalo! I open my mouth simply to express or give vent to the thoughts that arise thoughtlessly within me.”
—Rag Tilang M.1

“Whenever a Master-soul opens His mouth, He does so to utter the Words of Allah or God, though the voice may seem to be human.”
—Maulana Rumi

“I and my Father are one ... All things are delivered to me of my Father ... I am in the Father and the Father in me. The words I speak unto you I speak not of myself, but the Father that dwelleth in me, He doeth the work.” —Christ

When a drop of water loses its identity in the ocean, it becomes an integral part of the ocean itself. In the same way a spirit, when it once enters into Godhood or merges in God, no longer remains an individual spirit for the rest of the allotted span of its physical existence but is an integral part of God, the very Ocean of Life. All this can be achieved only through the Grace of a Master-soul; and thus the tedious journey Homeward is accomplished quite easily and smoothly. It is not given to man to achieve this by himself, unaided by a Satguru.

“It is the fundamental law of God, that no one can move Godward without the aid of a Satguru.”
— War Bihagra M.4

There is one and only one way Godward, for all alike, rich or poor, high or low, learned or unlettered, Oriental or Occidental, Laplanders of the North or Bushmen of the South. It is the most ancient and the most natural way, universal in its appeal, since it is ordained by God Himself for His children, no matter wherever in the wide world they may be or whatever religion they may profess, and whatever be their colour, caste or creed. This in essence is the scope of Spiritual Science as taught by Master-souls from time to time, according to the needs of the Age in which They lived and in the then common language of the people. Hence the basic similarity in Their teachings.

SPIRITUALITY

“Truth is one, though the Sages describe it variously,” states the Upanishadic text.

Saints work as pilots in the stormy sea of life. They take upon Themselves the burden of steering the righteous souls clear of shoals and submerged rocks, and do not rest contented until the souls are safely taken back right to the home of their Father. They come from afar from a purely spiritual realm, with a set purpose and mission — to ferry the world-weary pilgrim soul anxious for a reunion with the Source and Fountainhead of life.

“They are Godly Souls clothed in human bodies and come with God’s knowledge,

They come from unknown places to trade in souls and ever look backwards.”

—Maulana Rumi

The scriptures are full of the spiritual experiences of such High-Souled Saints and constitute a common heritage for mankind. Their instructions are for all alike, for Theirs is a universal appeal to humanity and not to this or that social sect or order. They speak from the level of the soul to all embodied souls, irrespective of denominational emblems and nomenclatures, for God belongs to them who claim Him as their own.

“He is peerless and unconcerned, but bound to His devotees;

WHAT IT IS

All others are attached to the world and have no devotion for the Lord." — Sorath Ravidas

Surat Shabd Yoga aims at a direct union of the soul with God. The Master at the time of initiation gives to the aspirant a first-hand inner experience, howsoever of the lowest order it may be, of spirituality. This can, in course of time, by regular Sadhan or practice of spiritual discipline, be developed. All scriptures give a fine record of the teachings of this Natural Yoga, which is not the reserved right of any particular sect or religion. As God is for all mankind, the Masters of this science are also for one and all. As one proceeds on the spiritual path, unknown vistas open to view, revealing undreamt of spiritual realms. But such experiences are possible only through the Grace of a Satguru.

In brief, no one can possibly travel on the God-way all by himself without the aid of an unerring Guide, call Him what one may — a God-man, Murshid-i-Kamel (Perfect Master), or Rahbar-i-Haq (Guide to the realm of Truth). It is, then, absolutely necessary that a seeker after Truth make a quest for some Perfect Master well versed in the theory as well as the practice of Surat Shabd Yoga. It is immaterial that one may have to spend his entire life span in search of a really competent Master, and may, in the attempt, have to wander from place to place, in all the ten directions of the compass — for strait is the path, sharper than the razor's edge, narrow is the gate and few there be that find it. A perfect Master veritably leads the soul from darkness to light, from untruth to Truth and from death to immortality. He is a never-failing friend, both here and hereafter.

"He remains ever with you whether you live or die,

And no matter whether you are here on earth or in the hereafter."
—Maulvi Rumi

Again:

"Even at the place of reckoning, He shall stand by thy side."
—Suhi M.1

It is therefore said:

"O Nanak! snap all worldly ties and search for a true friend,

The one shall leave thee even in life, while the other shall accompany thee into the Beyond."
—Maru War M.5

In Their company one can transcend body-consciousness and rise into Cosmic Consciousness and then on into Super Consciousness, which lies far beyond the limits of the Grand Dissolution and is eternally the same. All our toils and troubles are the result of our separation from the Power of God, but, with reunion, we can once again gain the Kingdom of God. It is through the fault of the Primal Man (Adam) that we lost the Garden of Eden, and it is through the Primal Man (the son of God) that one can have reconciliation with the Father (Spirit of God), behind the otherwise impenetrable veil of darkness (Bajjar Kapat) at the back of the eyes, and enjoy eternal beatitude while basking in the light of Heaven.

WHAT IT IS

Farid, a Muslim saint of great renown, emphatically directs: "O Farid, start on a world-wide quest for some Master-soul. Carry on a ceaseless search, high or low, right or left, in short anywhere and everywhere, for once you are able to find out a Man of Grace, you too, shall have Grace." Such a One not only tells us of the Way and is with us always, but naturally accompanies us on the Way, as a Guide from plane to plane — from mundane physical world right up to Sach Khand, or the Abode of Truth.

When a spirit transcends the physical body and crosses over to the preliminary regions of stars, the sun and the moon, it comes face to face with the Luminous Form of the Master, and it is then said to have taken a second birth. From here the Master takes charge of the soul and takes it on from plane to plane. Christ, too, speaks of it as follows: "Unless you are born anew, you cannot enter the Kingdom of God." This is the Birth of the Spirit, as distinguished from the Birth by Water. While the latter is of the Corruptible Seed, the former is of the Seed Incorruptible.

SPIRITUALITY

Henceforth, the spirit or the soul is under the charge of the Master and no power of darkness can tempt It.

The teachings of the Saints are, as said above, the most ancient and the most natural. They are the most suited to all ranks and ages, and to all types of persons irrespective of sex, caste, colour or creed. This natural way has never been changed, and is learned from a competent Master only. Every individual soul can verify the truth of these teachings by accepting them, even as an experimental measure.

VII SECTARIANISM

Worldly people generally believe that ethical codes of individual and social conduct, as enjoined in all religions, are the be-all and end-all. They fix their faith on one or another of the scriptures, or simply depend blindly on ancient religious heads of past ages. This is not spirituality but narrow sectarianism, which, like parasitical willows, thrives and grows fat on the word religion. As a result, the very spirit of religion itself is smothered. and is reduced to mere rites, rituals and ceremonies. The poor psyche, possessed by these empty trumperies, sham and tinsel, is so overwhelmed with narrow prejudices that it begins to indulge in a devil's dance of wholesale killing and destruction.

The pity is that all this is done in the name of religion. In this way, religion, which originated with the sole end of bringing about a reunion of individual spirit with God, goes underground. Spiritual sanctity, which is the kernel and life-principle, gradually disappears under the dust of ages and the mass of verbiage. The so-called exponents of religion, not being persons of self-realization, engage in intellectual wrangles and confine themselves to the philosophical and polemical part of religion. In their enthusiasm to show off their learning, they begin building theories upon theories, with not an iota of practical wisdom in them. Religion, meant originally as a practical field for the play of the spirit, is thus reduced to a platform for political, social or philosophical disputations.

As sects grow, the hydra-headed sectarianism displays theories with innumerable forms and rituals. Each sect claims to be the sole guardian of the religion and custodian of the correct religious beliefs and ideas, little knowing that religion is not a bundle of theories but a practical subject concerned with the freedom of soul from the bondage of mind and matter. In their enthusiasm, they forget the Reality and lay stress on outward observances and performances.

The present-day religions are now no more than social orders and are chiefly concerned with keeping society in a state free from corruption. Religion, in the true sense of the word, as the Way back to God, is but one — an inner process — but, unfortunately, we have cut so many channels outwardly that we cannot now think of it apart from the mess that we have made of its sacrament. The leaders of each sect preach respect for a particular individual or a particular book that they hold in esteem, but not for all the scriptures and all the Saints and Sages, past and present.

WHAT IT IS

So instead of seeing the universal light common to all mankind, we run after a ray here and a ray there and discard the Sun of Spirituality that is at the core of all the religions. In this way we so dwarf our visions and mental horizons that we cannot see anything beyond our noses, and gradually begin to lose sight of Truth, the eternal and unchangeable permanence, and cannot tolerate what others have to say. With smoke-coloured glasses, we look darkly at everything with a sense of doubt, distrust and suspicion.

It is we who build and set up narrow limitations, grow thorny hedges to protect our petty beliefs, to the exclusion of what the Master-souls have taught since the day of creation. Religions, thus, have grown into rigid watertight compartments, protected preserves for individual game, incapable of expansion to embrace the totality of existence, the entire universe, which is the manifestation of the living principle of God.

The church dogmas have built institutions out of the eclectic and elastic teachings of the Masters, and instead of Their living and soothing touch and influence, we are confronted with the rigid forms and creeds set up by those who followed the founders of the great religions. These men work as so many fetters for keeping us enchained and enmeshed. Whosoever thinks freely and tries to escape their clutches is dubbed a heretic and an apostate, is persecuted, excommunicated, exorcized, as if he were an evil spirit. Such leaders are, however, far removed from the universal religion of love. Human birth is the highest in the creation, and the greatest benefit that accrues from it is the possibility in the human life of reaching God and acquiring love for His creatures, in whatsoever form; but, unfortunately, with his moorings cut off from the Reality, man has made an enemy of man, and instead of being the lovers of God and His devotees, men have constituted themselves the custodians of religion and leaders of men.

“To be worldly is but to turn one’s back on God,

And to pine for and hear the tales other than those of God.”
—A Mohammedan Saint

Again: “Ye can gain the merit of all the teachings and preachings,

If ye turn away from the world and commune with Truth.”
—A Mohammedan Saint

This earth, instead of being a veritable Heaven, for which we so zealously wish and pray every day, has turned into a veritable hell of mutual distrust, class jealousies, communal hatreds, national antagonisms and international discord. Self-aggrandizement at the cost of others has become the rule of life. While talking of peace, we actually preach unrest, disharmony and discontent. All this is nothing but the natural concomitant of narrow sectarianism, born of the dark ignorance in which we are steeped to the very marrow of our bones. Instead of making us lovers of God and all humanity, we are enchained to our particular societies and consider it a heinous crime to go to other societies.

SPIRITUALITY

VIII THE ORIGIN OF RELIGION

The quest for the Immanent and All-powerful Entity began when self-consciousness dawned on living creatures. The endless limitations with which the Spirit finds itself surrounded, the insufficiency and incompleteness on all sides, the utter helplessness in the face of death, and in illness and suffering, all combine to stir up in man a longing to find out the source of all life, all light, all happiness and all Bliss. He seeks a power with which to combat all evil, fight the dark forces of the negative power, chase away pain and misery, and be established with unchangeable permanence in this ever-changing universe. He wants to find the central permanent point, around which the eternal dance of creation and destruction goes on ceaselessly.

The roots of all religions are to be found in the attempt of man, from age to age, to solve this mystery of duality: life and death, light and darkness, truth and untruth, opulence and poverty. Dissatisfied with his surroundings, he begins the eternal search anew and turns to the why and wherefore of things.

He now tries to find the substratum of life itself, the source from which the creative life-principle springs, which enlivens the body and the bodily adjuncts and activates everything around him. Once this question takes hold of a person, it never leaves him, and he plunges himself headlong into the problem and seeks to solve the mystery in whatever way he can. He begins his search first of all in the creeds and beliefs of the age and the surroundings in which he lives. But when all these fail to satisfy him and he discovers himself in the wilderness of different ideologies, conflicting theories, heterogeneous postulates and conclusions, he feels bewildered and helpless to chalk out for himself the Way-out. Next, he turns to the scriptures and religious texts for the solace of his mind, but here, too, he is confronted with insurmountable difficulties: want of knowledge of the archaic languages in which they are written, the subtlety of the subject, lack of practical men of realization to give him their correct and true import.

The momentous quest now takes another turn. He breaks through all the barriers of age-old traditions and customs, social and ritualistic observances and accepted codes of conduct, so that he may discover the hidden light and the Power of God — the lost Word — something greater and more powerful than what he has experienced hitherto in the outer world. From the search without, he gradually withdraws his attention and begins to concentrate on the thought of self within. In this way he comes to distinguish between Religion and religiosity, or religious beliefs and practices, all of which are connected with the sensory plane only. The seeds of life lie in the depths of life itself — the spirit or the soul — in every living thing, even plants and flowers.

Spirituality is concerned with the most vital problems of the Spirit alone — what it is, where it dwells, how it works, how it can be concentrated to dwell upon itself, how it can be separated from the folds of the body and mind, where it goes after death, how it can voluntarily be withdrawn from the sensory plane of the body, the specific journey that lies ahead, the various spiritual planes that it has to traverse, its ultimate goal, and many other topics of an allied nature connected with its well-being. This, then, is the religion of the soul, quite distinct and apart from the social and moral well-being of an individual, both of which depend on his spiritual well-being. A sound mind in a sound body is a well-known aphorism, but a sound soul at the back of them both is of paramount importance, because mind and body live by the soul, the great dynamo or motor power, in the life and light of which both these adjuncts work.

This search for the true self, though full of mysteries, and with untold possibilities and immense spiritual treasures within (of which the saints sing in glorious terms), now attracts the attention of the seeker. It is purely a subjective matter and lies beyond the pale of reasoning and imagination. It is a 'Wisdom of the Beyond' (Para Vidya) and can be experienced by the soul in its pure nakedness, released from all the enshrouding sheaths.

We cannot but repeat the memorable words of Guru Nanak, in this context:

"One cannot comprehend Him through reason, even if one reasoned for ages.

One cannot achieve inner peace by outward silence, though one sat dumb for ages;

One cannot buy contentment with all the riches of the world, nor reach Him with all mental ingenuity:

How may one know the Truth and break through the cloud of falsehood?

There is a Way, O Nanak! to make His Will our own,

His Will which is already wrought in our existence."
—Jap Ji, St. 1

Once convinced of the futility of all outer knowledge and wisdom, performances and observances, the search within becomes a passion with the sincere seeker after Truth, for self-realization is a key to God-realization. St. Augustine, once sitting on the seashore with his great work 'De Trinitate,' saw a child taking the sea-water into a shell and pouring it into a hole he had made in the sand. Asked what he was doing, the child naively replied that he was trying to empty the ocean. The great sage explained to him the futility of all his endeavours, since it was an impossibility. Exactly the same is the position in the case of God-knowledge, for He, the Infinite, cannot be known by the finite individual trying to grasp Him at the level of the intellect. How can a part know the whole? Self, the basis of all conscious life, cannot be cognised by the conscious mind or intellect. A thing not based on Realities, cannot be real and cannot know the real. Even of the yogic methods as means to still the mind for self-realization, Gaudpada, the famous forerunner of Patanjali (author of the yoga systems, thousands of years before), spoke about such efforts as strivings of a person to empty the ocean drop by drop with the tip of a blade of grass.

From the above, it would be abundantly clear that the germs of all religions are located in self-questionings and self-communings of the great souls. Here all religious philosophies end and true religion begins. By degrees this inner search proceeds, and, one by one, the koshas or the coverings of the spirit are analyzed, pierced through and discarded. They are peeled off layer by layer in the deep inner silence of the mind, until the mental apparatus itself also drops off like a tattered garment, leaving the soul free and resplendent in its pristine luminosity, more lustrous than the light of several suns put together. This is called evolution of the Spirit or unfoldment of the Reality, shrouded as it is in innumerable coverings to start with. Self-knowledge (or Atma Sidhi) precedes God-knowledge (or Paramatma Sidhi).

It is only when the spirit comes into its own and is freed from all the earthly ties and the bodily trappings, physical, astral and causal, that it is in a position to apprehend, appreciate or feel the presence of God or Reality. The senses, the mind and the intellect, in their gross nature, ever fail to know and understand the Reality by means of logic, philosophy and metaphysics. It is the spirit in its original purity, when disengaged and disentangled from the various trappings, that can contact Godhood. Spirituality in its true sense, as described above, can neither be bought, nor taught, but may be caught, as if it were an infection, from some God-man. All learning through books, lectures or philosophic disputations cannot make a person spiritual.

The love of God may be seen in the loveladen eyes of the Son-of-God. His liquid eyes betray the Divine intoxication within them. They are cups bubbling over with God's life, love and light. Herein lies the hiatus between sectarianism, the great scriptures of the world, the so-called religions, as confined and cramped in the pages of sacred and monumental works of the ancients, in languages too ancient, too archaic and too technical to be understood, on the one hand — and spirituality, the science of the Soul or true religion of the spirit, on the other. The latter is the common heritage of the entire humanity, catholic in its approach, unlimited in its scope and unfettered by anyone's professed belief, faith and religious notions. It is an inner process of the spirit; and all Saints preach of nothing but spirituality in its pure, undiluted and unalloyed form.

God is the Divine Ground on which life, mind and matter make their play, and all these cannot possibly know the very Life of their life. Saints, therefore, emphasize that this Divine Ground can only be felt by intuition when directly experienced by realization, which is possible only by the sixth sense or the inner eye. That center is also known as Nukta-i-Swaida, the Third Eye, the Divine Vision, the Single Eye. Christ says that it "shall fill the whole body with light" — light uncreated, perennial and everlasting, light which is self-existent and shadowless, light that never is on land or sea. This is why Jesus, the Prophet, asks us to beware lest the light in the body turn into darkness: "The light shineth in the darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not." The outer symbol of this we see nowadays in the lighted candles at church altars, the earthen lamps in temples and gurdwaras (now of course replaced by electric light), and the ever-burning fires in Zoroastrian homes.

Akin to the Single Eye is also the Voice of God (the Kalma of the Muslims, the Word of Christ, the Sruti of the Vedas, Udgit of the Upanishads, Sarosha of the Zoroastrians, Elan Vital or the Life Current of the Western philosophers, and Voice of the Silence of the Theosophists) within the body which we cannot hear, as our spiritual ears have been waxed and sealed. This great truth is symbolized in outer life by the conches in the temples, the gongs in the gurdwaras and Buddhist temples, the bells in church belfries and Jaras (Big bell) of the Sufis. The Saints in all climes and in all times have made frequent references to this phenomenon in all Their teachings and writings.

The true religion or spirituality consists in linking the soul with Oversoul in its manifested play of light and sound in the God-made temple of the human body. The more the spirit withdraws from without and transcends its limitations — physical, astral, and causal — the more experience it gets of the spiritual phenomena, with the Grace of the Master. Such is vouchsafed to one who has prepared for death in life at will — for unless one learns to die daily, one cannot have life everlasting. Bergson, the great philosopher, calls it "open religion" as contra-distinguished from "closed religions," that is, religions sealed down in ancient and “immutable” scriptures, spoken of and taken to be the last word.

Religions have now been reduced to the mere performance of charitable deeds, observance of rites, rituals and ceremonies like fasts and pilgrimages; wearing of particular apparel; white, yellow, blue, flame-coloured or ochre robes; keeping peculiar marks on the body like a tuft of hair on the head, sacred thread across the shoulder, circumcision or the five Kakas; all of which have no substantial bearing, however remote, on the advancement of the soul towards self-realization and God-realization.

The prime need of the age is a living Reality, a dip in the ocean of life, a sip of the elixir of life, a vision of the Divine Light that may bestow immortality and lead to efflorescence of the spirit into Godhood. This is what Sri Aurobindo says: “Contact the Super-mind and draw it down to make divine all life, mind and matter. It is the common birthright of all created beings and not the monopoly of any nation or class of individuals professing this or that faith or belief.”

Man by nature is a composite being — the component parts being body, mind and soul. God made man after His own image and so the Saints ordain: “Be thou as perfect as thy Father in Heaven is perfect.” Thrice blessed is man on account of the immense and immeasurable possibilities that have been lodged in him by the Maker. The very Divinity, with holy light, life and love, is the very soul of his soul. But alas, what man has made of man — and worse still, of himself — no better than a beast, or even worse than that.

It behooves man as man to be rich, abundantly rich, in all the three aspects of his life — as distinguished from the mutilated, maimed and moth-eaten existence that he now has through ignorance of self-knowledge. This creation is a double process: involution with evolution. The Divinity involved in the very nature of the spirit, mind and matter has to be evolved, enlarged and developed, until it completely and fully coincides with the Divine ground, the substratum on which, in sheer ignorance, it now plays its limited and restricted part unmindful of its Godhood.

The physical self of the soul is endowed with ten instruments: five karam indrias or motor powers, and five Jnana indrias or powers of perception, all of which help the body in its worldly dealings. The mind has been gifted with four facets: mana (mind-stuff), chit (consciousness), buddhi (intellect), and ahankar (ego), all of which operate in the world of senses and help the psyche in thinking and discriminating in the light of reason. Next in the ascending scale comes soul, the great rider in the vehicle of the mind-driven body. Its instrument of action is surat (self-consciousness or attention born of the great consciousness). This attention, if properly helped and guided, brings about singleness of purpose and fixity in aim; it collects and gathers up the wandering faculties of the mind from the senses as identified with objects and immersed in their enjoyment.

While the body works, the mind discriminates and the psyche craves happiness. Should the three component parts, body, mind and attention (soul), be brought into harmony at one common center, the life on earth of the poor, limited and bound psyche, becomes a real blessing, eternal and everlasting, possessing all the attributes of the supramental consciousness: namely, Sat—Chit—Anand (existence, consciousness and bliss).

A person who devotes his attention to the body-building process grows in physical strength with muscles fully developed and well knit; he is looked upon as an embodiment of radiant health, and is admired by hundreds of people who see him. A person who devotes his attention to the development of his mental powers acquires a keen and sharp intellect, grows into an intellectual giant and inspires thousands of persons by his powerful speeches and writings. Again, one who takes to the development of the self or spirit in him, becomes divine and in course of time becomes a God-man and God-hood shines in Him through and through. He sheds heavenly lustre among great gatherings and audiences that come into His fold, and, as a Tower of Spirituality, He serves as a beacon light to all and sundry in the stormy sea of life. This is the yoga of hand, heart and head combined into one, and makes a person an integrated whole, perfect as the Father in Heaven is. All this and still more comes to him by communion with and practice of the Word (the Music of the Soul or Song of the Pranva), which reverberates ceaselessly in and around him. This is the true religion, a religion of the living spirit (Truth), the “open religion” of Bergson. There is, in fact, no religion higher than this, giving life and light alike to one and all, and making man thrice blessed — blessed in body, mind and soul — fit to be worshipped and adored not only by his fellow beings but even by the angels, as ordained by God, when He makes man after His own image.

This human body is a veritable temple of God, wherein the spirit or the soul can be attuned to listen to the Divine Music within. It can be made to witness and enjoy the Divine Light, and enabled to get Divine revelations like the prophets of old. When once it experiences the Supreme Bliss, all attachments of the world fall off by themselves, lose their glamour and charm. The psyche, freed from oblivion, blossoms forth into a new life — the life of the spirit as distinguished from the life of the senses. This is spirituality, this is the true religion, into the mysteries of which only a Saint or a Master-soul initiates a true seeker and aspirant by unlocking the door leading to the Kingdom of God, which is right within us. About this door Christ says: "Knock and it shall be opened unto thee."

RELIGION: OUTER AND INNER

While physical sciences deal with and impart knowledge of the physical sensate world, ethical codes of conduct are concerned with an individual as a member of society, and these codes lay down rules of social relationship between the two. Spirituality, or science of the spirit, tells us about the soul's evolution or unfoldment (a process of liberating it from the various sheaths or coverings in which it is clothed), its identical nature with God, and how it can be linked with the Divine Reality, its very Source and Fountainhead, and achieve its Godhood and be blessed forever.

The science of the Masters is an experimental science and, like any physical science, is capable of yielding results with mathematical accuracy. These results can very well be verified from the transformations that one can witness in the life of a man of sadhan (or one who practices spiritual discipline). It does not mean book-learning or accumulation of knowledge, but it means the coming into its own of the spirit, and its taking a new birth in cosmic awareness and rising into supramental or Super Consciousness. This realization brings with it a blessed calmness, and thereafter the immanence of God is always felt and the actual working of the Divine Will becomes manifest. Reason and intellect fail to comprehend the infinite Reality. Even after realization, words but beggar one's attempt to describe the indescribable. This experimentation in Godhood can only be attempted and achieved in utter silence and stillness, both of the mind and the intellect, when like a revelation, His Light and Sound dawn upon the soul.

The knowledge of the world is far different from that of God. We are wholly engrossed in Apravidya and are totally ignorant of Paravidya (or knowledge of the Beyond). We make all possible efforts to rid ourselves of physical ailments, but have never even thought of the subtle maladies that afflict the inner self, or how low we are in the scale of human values, and how helplessly we drift along the current of life whether we wish it or not. We spend our entire life-span in eating, drinking and dozing, but care not a bit to know the substratum of the very life itself. Ever engaged as we are in the objective world, we cannot introvert and witness the glories of the world within.

SPIRITUALITY

A person who for seeing depends on his outer eyes, for hearing, on his ears, for talking, on his tongue, is in reality not a living person but a dead one, a breathing bellows with no life in it. As God abides within, we must peep inside if we want to meet Him, to experience Him, and to have His blessings. God pervades everything in the form of Naam or Shabd, but we cannot hear His voice unless we turn away from the turmoil of the world and enter into the deep inner silence of the soul. As we go in and recede, we walk without feet, work without hands, see without eyes and hear without ears. Guru Nanak therefore said in this context: "There one sees, hears, walks, works and talks without outer physical organs, viz., eyes, ears, legs, hands and tongue, provided he learns to die while living. O Nanak, know His Will and meet the Beloved." (Majh War M.2). Gosain Tulsi Das in the Bal Kand of the Ramayana also affirmed the same thing.

To know God, one must first know himself. Self-knowledge is possible only with inversion, or turning the attention from outer pursuits and directing it within into the deep silence of the mind — technically called the Divine Ground, behind the center of the two eyebrows. It is then only that the spirit experiences Naam, the Over-spirit, or God-in-action, which is the summum bonum of all religious quests after the Great Unknown. Buddha asserts that it is possible to ascend to the greatest heights of Godhood only within ourselves. Schopenhauer, a great German philosopher, declared that the fountainhead of all peace and blessed calm can be experienced within oneself. Christ emphatically declared: "The Kingdom of God is within you." In the Sikh Scriptures it is stated: "The precious waters of Immortality surge within one's very soul."

One can undertake this inward journey without leaving one's hearth and home, forsaking kith and kin, or abandoning one's calling and avocation in life. This grand pilgrimage of the soul can be performed in spite of worldly pursuits. All that is necessary is to get instruction from some living Master who holds the key to the Kingdom of God.

"O Nanak! follow strictly the injunctions of a perfect Master of putting you on the right Path. You shall then gain salvation happily while living the life of a householder in the midst of your family and friends." —Gujri War M.5

One need not leave the world and retire into the deep recesses of the forests to achieve this goal. The entire mystery can be resolved in the solitude of the mind.

"There is no greater sanctuary than that of one's soul." —Basant Ramanand M.5

SPIRITUALITY

An aspirant can, by practice, still the mind, even in the midst of the hustle and bustle of life, and can, at will, retire into the silent chamber of the Divine Ground. Unless the mind is stilled, an abode in a forest or by the side of a stream cannot be of any avail.

Every religion has two aspects or divisions: one is social and the other is spiritual. The social side consists in making ethical rules of conduct, which aim at rectifying social evils, developing society on healthy lines, observing certain rites and rituals and performing charitable deeds. By such means, one may best prepare the ground for higher spiritual life. The spiritual aspect of religions deals solely and primarily with the spirit, an investigation into its nature, its relation with body and mind, the way it can be detached from both these appendages, and how it can be linked up with Naam or Word, leading to realization of and identification with the Great Ocean of Consciousness.

Man is no doubt a social being, but society can rest safely only on the bedrock of Spirituality. Just as spirit enlivens the human body, so does Spirituality give life and sustenance to society, without which all types of social evils, such as narrow-mindedness, petty prejudices, selfish aggrandizement, clash and conflict, gradually creep into its very vitals and make it enervated, gangrenous and septic.

WHAT IT IS

In these days there is no dearth of social reform, but what we woefully lack is self-reform. Society has no doubt made a tremendous advance in the realms of science and art, politics and philosophy, and has not only unravelled the mysteries of Nature but has actually harnessed most of the forces of Nature and pressed them into its service in various ways. All this, however, has been achieved at a great cost and a mighty sacrifice — sacrifice of one's own spirit or soul. The natural result, therefore, is that with all this material advancement and multiplicity of material comforts, we are as far removed from happiness as we were before. "What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Matt. 16:26).

Man must, in the fitness of things, first know himself and have the experience of the Reality. Once this is achieved, it matters not whether a person remains a householder or renounces the world and becomes an anchorite. The Path of the Masters is purely spiritual. The Masters, of course, have to remain in one or the other of the social orders, but Their only mission is to bring home the Ultimate Truth to embodied souls, who are steeped in darkness. This They do by means of the Surat Shabd Yoga.

The Masters enjoin all to join the army of God, and take the various social religions as the recruiting centres thereof. They, therefore, continue to stand aloof from social squabbles, racial wrangles and religious recriminations. They do not come to destroy the existing religious orders or to raise new orders, but to purify and elevate the existing ones, restore them to their original pristine glory in which they were set up by their founders. They try to remove the mass of useless accretions that gather around them through the ages, and pull them out of the morass into which they sink, and also strengthen them by transfusion of the blood of spirituality into their decaying veins.

At the core of all religions there is the age-old Truth and the tradition of Spirituality, both of which have, by lapse of time, almost been lost. Religion is now nothing but an outer husk of rites and rituals. But the Masters actually experience the same Reality which is described in the sacred scriptures by the rishis and munis who came in the past. As such, Their teachings are not based on any sacred scriptures nor are They held fast and tight in the rigours of religiosity. They are concerned with Paravidya alone (the Science of the Spirit which is beyond the realm of thought, reason and intellect). This knowledge, experience and realization can neither be learned nor taught but may be caught, like any other infection, from a person infected with it.

WHAT IT IS

Men enter the Path by coming into contact with Master-souls, listening to Their words of wisdom, attending Their discourses and following Their teachings both in letter and spirit. In this way the Masters attract, magnetize and make divine the spirit, thereby removing all vacillations of the mind and rendering it immune forever from the onslaughts of matter and the material world. The spirit, thus freed from all the shackles that bind her to the material plane, is enabled to take up unfettered flights to higher regions that lie beyond the human ken. Such travels are a matter of experience by the soul alone, apart from mind and intellect. These outgoing faculties remain helpless, far down in the abyss below, with nothing to sustain and enliven them so long as the spirit is absorbed in higher spiritual experiences.

The Spiritual Teachings of all Masters in all ages and in all countries are one and the same, though described in the different words and languages prevailing at a particular time in a particular country. They come with the message of Spirituality, and their sole object is to spiritualize human beings by linking them in the process of spiritual evolution and unfoldment. Their teachings are therefore termed Ilm-i-Seena or Ilm-i-Laduni (knowledge of the inner man or soul, the knowledge of Reality), which is the inner experience of the soul without any outer aids. It is the very core of all knowledge, and by it everything else becomes known. It is the most natural science, and like other natural gifts — light, air and water — costs nothing. It is the common heritage of the entire humanity and can be claimed as such, by one and all alike, without any obligation, from any Master-soul. Saints are the children of Light and they come to diffuse Light into the universe.

“I am the Light of the world, and he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness but shall have the Light of Life.” — John 8:12

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

Scientists think that religion is just a bundle of superstitious beliefs, and that a person without religion can be as contented, peaceful and happy as one with religion. Atheists, or those who do not believe in God, assert that religion is the opiate of the people. Religious people, on the other hand, maintain that science has, by the invention of deadly and diabolical instruments of destruction and devastation, sown in the world dragons' teeth of discord, discontent and disruption. Scientists admit that a person is a complex of body and mind, and if one were to take care of the mind, the spirit, if any, would take care of itself. They are sceptical, both of spirit and of God.

WHAT IT IS

For the Master-Souls, spirit alone is the real entity, but it is entangled in the prison-house of body and mind. Their mission is to liberate the spirit from the various sheaths in which it is enshrouded and to link it up with the Word, or God-in-action (Holy Ghost), about which They have personal experiences. This evolution of the spirit is real salvation, but very few understand the true significance of it. Some feel that it consists just in petrification, while others think that it amounts to nihilism or atheism, i.e., denial of all existence and rejection of all moral and religious beliefs. But each of these conceptions is far from the truth. In fact, mind stands as a connecting link between body and bodily relations, and this linking up is bondage; while breaking asunder of this relationship is called salvation. The primary step in this direction is Gurbhakti, or devotion to a living Master, and the next, is practice of Naam or Word, which ultimately leads to Sach Khand or Muqam-i-Haq (the abode of Truth). "O Hafiz! the Paradise or Heaven is our birthright and a heritage."

If one were to consider deeply and earnestly the advantages and limitations of both science and religion, one would find a close connection between the two. Environments exert a two-fold influence on all living objects, external as well as internal, both of which are universal in character. Man is endowed with intellect, reason and discrimination (which the rest of the creation lacks), by which he is able to control his environment. A person remains happy so long as there is harmony between his internal and external relations. If things shape themselves as one wishes, one feels contented and happy. Experience shows that this state of harmony between the ever-wishful man and his environment is not static and does not last long. On the contrary, both of these are ever-changing.

It has ever been the endeavour of man to find a way that may assure a state of perfect and unchangeable harmony between himself and his environment. One way is to control the conditions without to an extent that may satisfy the needs of a person, whatever these may be. The other way is to regulate one's inner urges and inborn instincts in such a way as to develop an utter indifference to the ever-shifting environment without, so that one does not react to the influx of changing conditions in which all things are. The former effort is scientific in nature, while the latter is purely religious.

The realm of science extends from electrons to the stars. It embraces in its fold all objects of the world that can influence human feelings and emotions; in fact, everything that is capable of being comprehended by the senses. The inner world, on the other hand, is entirely different and unique in character. Our motor and sensory organs, which work so admirably in the material world, cannot invert easily and take stock of the mental world within. This inner world is full of immense possibilities and untold treasures of spirituality, all of which lies within one's reach and grasp, if one could but know how to enter into one's own self.

Again, there are the relative values and measures of quantity in material objects. For instance, two halves of a loaf of bread go to make one whole loaf, but two half-wits cannot make one wise man. Further, we have instruments and implements that help us in material investigations, and the conclusions arrived at in the course of our experiments are verifiable in actual practice. These are some of the facts that contribute to the importance of scientific truths. Every day scientific experiments are being performed, and will continue to be performed indefinitely. What is true today may not be so tomorrow. But that is not the case with religion. Truth is Truth, ever the same, and shall be Truth always. It guarantees perpetual happiness and everlasting bliss by regulating the inborn instincts and the native urges of the mind, rendering it unmindful of the changing conditions without.

The path of religion is strewn with many impediments. All persons, including Saints, are mortal, and after They leave the physical plane, Their followers, in their blind enthusiasm, introduce and interpolate into Their teachings things which They never uttered or, at least, They never meant. So-called philosophical treatises are so full of distortions and apparent conflict with each other that one feels as though lost in a wilderness.

In order that one may reach the spiritual heights of a Master-soul, one must, according to His instructions, enter into the laboratory of one's own body and carry on the experiments therein. Again, the results achieved may differ from one individual to another, owing to the separate make-up and background in each case. The conclusions thus reached and the time taken in each are, therefore, of a purely personal nature and not of a universal kind, as in science. It is because of this that we cannot possibly have an experience of spiritual life, from the different types of worship conducted in temples and mosques, churches and synagogues, or from the sacred scriptures of various religions. A living Master, Who has successfully transcended the body and mind, and Who has an actual experience of the naked Reality beyond all limitations and barriers, can tell us something solid of the Great Truth. By personal guidance and instruction, He can help in the withdrawal of the spirit from the physical and mental shackles and bring within one's actual experience that which He has experienced.

WHAT IT IS

What a man has done, a man can do, with, of course, proper guidance and help. The Master's personal contact, His thought-transference, His charged words and magnetized personality, all go a long way in the transformation of individual souls. Whoever comes and remains within the personal aura of a Master, is electrified and attuned to the Infinite Energy with which He is possessed and which He emits, transmits and injects into the aspirants. This benefit can also be had even from thousands of miles, if one develops receptivity with such a Master.

Life-impulse comes from life, and light from light, both in the physical and spiritual worlds alike. The technique of religion, too, is subject to certain fundamental laws, the same as is the technique of science, but with this difference only, that we are as yet unaware of the former, as we have paid but scant attention to it and cannot therefore harness it to our advantage. Purity of life and highly ethical conduct in thoughts, words and deeds is the prerequisite for a sadhu or an aspirant for the spiritual path. Mind has to be stilled, after freeing it from all kinds of outer disturbances, inner lures and urges, and environmental glamour or worries. Just as in the case of a scientific experiment, one has to enter a laboratory and see that all the instruments are thoroughly neat and clean, and properly sterilized. And again, before beginning the operation, all the doors and windows are closed, so that he may carry on his work undisturbed from outer influences, and with undivided attention.

It is a matter of common experience that people take pride in scrupulously following age-old customs and keeping up ancient traditions blindly, little knowing that out-of-date coins, however precious and of historical importance and archeological interest they may be, have to be melted in the red-hot furnace, minted afresh, before passing them as current coins for fresh circulation in the market. In the twentieth century, it is of paramount importance to prune off the unnecessary accretions that have, in course of time, gathered around the eternal Spiritual Truths. We should free Them from the encrusted dust of ages that has settled on Them, and present them afresh to the public in a positive and readily acceptable form as current coins of the time.

The present-day prejudices, internecine jealousies and narrow-minded bigotries that we see in the various religious bodies, were never intended by their founders. Such evils are purely of a later growth, due to extraneous influences of the zealous exponents, fierce commentators and controversialists, who twist and torture simple fundamental truths to suit their own ends and gain cheap peshwarship (leadership) that may bring them name, fame, pelf and power. The ancient wine of spirituality has, therefore, to be delved out from the old forgotten cellars and presented to tipplers in new bottles that may appeal to their imagination, so that they take it readily and willingly to quench their spiritual thirst, without any labels or brands.

IDOL-WORSHIP AND GOD-WORSHIP

Man is a compound of body and soul. To the extent that a person has a material body, he is governed by the laws of matter (e.g., gravity, cohesion, impermeability, conductivity, etc.) ; and to the extent that he is an animal being he is governed by organic laws (e.g., nutrition, growth, development, self-propagation, etc.). Again, he is a conscious entity or a sentient being and, as such, the laws of consciousness (e.g., producing a sense of hunger, thirst, discomfort and self-development) are also applicable to him, and he works for a happy, care-free and comfortable living. So long as a person is attached to material things and material comforts, he is subject to suffering and pain; but when he submits himself to the organic laws of the soul, he becomes blessed and happy. Kabir Sahib, there, says: "The embodied soul is never restful and blessed. For man, wheresoever he may be, there is ever discomfort and distress." Lord Buddha also declared that physical life is all misery. Nanak saw the entire world writhing in invisible flames.

SPIRITUALITY

Idolatry consists in paying all attention to the nourishment and ornamentation of the physical body; but beautifying the soul and linking it with God is God-worship indeed. Woe be to us who are utterly ignorant of the living spirit in the body and how it can be decked, dressed and embellished. The physical body is the veritable home, and spirit is the indweller therein. In the fitness of things, one must first unearth the spirit and purify it, before cleansing the body. What does it profit a person to sweep the house, keep it neat and clean and embellish it with all sorts of decorations, only to keep the indweller, or the soul, famine-stricken?

Having forgotten our innate nature of Godhood, we have completely identified our 'self' with the body, and always think, speak and act in terms of the body and bodily conditions and relations. When the very existence of the body depends on the spirit (or the life spark) in it, we must take care of the latter, think of It, and give It timely food to keep It healthy and strong, for on Its health and strength depend the glory and dignity of the body. The ever-changing body, which is subject to decay and death, may be looked after, just to keep it fit and going, as with any other vehicle of self-expression. But it should not be pampered and doted upon, so as to lose all thought of the self-enlivening life-flame in the body, the motor force that quickens the inert matter with life. Without that power it has no value at all and is considered fit to be consigned either to the flames or to the graveyard.

We must not forget that we are in reality sparks of Godhood, quite distinct from the material house in which we sojourn for the time being. It behooves us all to learn all about this Life Impulse surging through the entire creation, the Fountainhead or the Source of this life stream, and how we can reach the same and attain eternal peace and happiness, which is our heritage and our birthright. The great lesson of life can only be learned from a Master-soul. Its alpha and beta begin with the voluntary withdrawal of the sensory current in the body, until a state of detachment is achieved by concentration at the seat of the soul, behind the center of the two eyebrows, called eye-focus or Til. All this can be done only through the Grace of some perfect living Master — an Adept, not only in the theory but also in the practice of the Science of Soul, Who is capable of bringing the soul above the body consciousness and making others share His own experiences.

“Some Godly person may link us with God.”

—Jaitsari M.5

When once the spirit is linked with divinity and engrafted in God, it gradually takes roots in its Native Soil, acquires and develops its natural attributes from the Divine Ground on which it grows and thrives from day to day. This is called by all the sages in the East and the West, taking a second birth, or being born anew, as Christ puts it. The incorruptible seeds of this spiritual birth are sown by some God-man when we live up to Him and scrupulously follow His instructions, which in technical parlance is called Satsang, or company with Sat, the great Unchangeable Permanence in the midst of ever-changing panorama of life and the kaleidoscopic universe in which we live.

SPIRITUALITY

Handsome is the body in which the soul is attuned with God. All beauty, including the physical beauty, depends on the beauty of the spirit, which in turn rests on Union with the Divine Beauty.

“Blessed is the body in which the spirit dwells in union with her divine current;

The true Beloved grants her eternal life, and one always lives in communion with the Master’s Word.”
—Suhi M.3

Again:

“A Master’s devotee delves deep into the body and regards all else as a mere delusion;

He alone finds the crest jewel who has been so ordained, for cleverness is of no avail,

Blessed is the body that engages in the service of the Master, the True One having made it,

WHAT IT IS

Without communion with Word, there is no freedom from the wiles of Kaal,

O Nanak! he glorifies the Word, on whom God showers His mercy and grace." — Suhi M.3

Once a spirit becomes aware of its native Godhood, and is dyed in the Divine colour, it becomes freed from the bondage of the world and forever escapes from the cycle of births and deaths. But all this comes not from learning, knowledge or cunning devices, but only from the grace of some Master-soul or God-man, Who is competent to give an ingress into the Beyond by practical self-analysis.

THE IDEAL OF UNIVERSAL RELIGION

The crying need of the time is to set up one universal religion for the entire mankind, which should be a compendium of all that is good in every religion. But is it possible? Owing to differences in temperaments and modes of thinking, it is well-nigh impossible to lay down rules of worship acceptable to all, and to direct their varying thought-currents into one channel. With all this diversity, there is yet one thing which is common in all humanity. It is the Divine link with which the entire creation came into being, and is being sustained. All religions, in spite of apparent differences in external forms and rituals, are at bottom embedded in essentials which are exactly alike. The Divine Ground on which each of them rests is the same, and the huge mass of superstructure has been raised in each case on the bedrock of Divinity itself.

The problem that confronts us is to find a way whereby it may be possible to reach that Divine Ground — the bedrock of Divinity. The essential roots of all religions are now lost to view and utterly forgotten under the camouflage of ancient verbiage, the encrusted dust of ages and the dogmatic creeds of the priestcraft. All that we need now is to present Truth, once again, to the scientific modern world, in a scientific setting. Religion, instead of being a source of solace to souls, has now become an instrument of separation, hatred, ill will and tyranny. In the blessed name of religion, fire and sword are oppressing humanity, innocent blood is being spilt and the fair face of earth is being defiled with destruction and ruin, simply because over-emphasis is laid on non-essentials and external shells. The result is that people all the world over have come to have a kind of horror for the so-called religion which has failed to serve the common needs of humanity. Religion should bring union between man and man, nation and nation, knitting the world in common bonds of all-embracing love, fellowship and brotherhood.

Let religions now be confined to the ethical codes of social conduct and social order, to which they have already sunk. Let people be free to remain in the labelled categories in which they are born and to which they belong, but it is most important that they should try to find out and understand the essential roots of all religions. By delving deep within, the soul in each individual should try to rest on the Divine Ground, and take hold of the common link running through the entire creation — the Source and Fountainhead of all life. Unless all this is presented as a science, in theory as well as in practice, people are not willing to listen to and to accept the fundamentals of all religions. They have to rise above the ritualistic forms and traditions, to which they have been wedded since time immemorial and to which they so tenaciously cling.

Religion in the real sense of the word means reunion with God. The saints are always in union with God. Whatever spiritual experiences They had in the spiritual realms are recorded in the sacred scriptures for the benefit of mankind. "One has no right to dub the scriptures as fantastic or false, for false is he who does not ponder over the actual writings and does not try to understand their true import." —Kabir

Whosoever has an experience with God, loves the entire humanity. He feels within him a realization of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. It may therefore be taken for certain that those who preach hatred and sow the seeds of ill will in God's creation, have not yet had any experience of the Creator.

The personal experience with God which a soul has, is in reality a true religion. Unless the spiritual experiences as recorded in sacred lore are actually had by us, through the Grace of a living Master, we continue to be atheists or agnostics and know not what religion is.

God has made man after His own image. Hence, it behooves man to be as perfect as the Father. This becomes possible only when a person learns to understand His Will, and works in accordance with it. This is the true religion and true faith, while all else is sham and tinsel.

If we were to analyze the sacred books of all religions, we would find that the spiritual truths as contained therein, are the fine records of actual spiritual experiences of their founders. These Master-souls have always emphasized the spiritual aspect of human life and have emphatically declared that in the human body there is a separate entity called spirit, which is Unchangeable Permanence. They hold that this entity could be as well developed as are other faculties, physical, mental and intellectual, within the ever-changing physical raiment of the material world.

The enjoyment of worldly objects is not an ideal state. Realization of the self should be the goal of man. All religious books tell us of the way whereby a spirit can have an experience of the Vast Consciousness and Super Consciousness and thereby lead a truly spiritual life, which, however, does not consist in blind beliefs, faithful performance of rites and rituals, and scrupulous observance of social and ethical rules of conduct. To know the Truth, is the be-all and the end-all of all religions. The fundamental teachings of all center upon the realization of Shabd, Naam, Kalma or Word, all of which are different names for one and the same thing: Godhood, God-in-action, or the Holy Ghost. Spiritual advancement is possible and can be achieved only when the spirit contacts this Naam or Shabd; hence, this type of union with the Sound-current is known as Surat Shabd Yoga.

We must study all religions with love and devotion, adopt and accept, as a workable formula, the common Divine Ground underlying each. The different religious books, such as the Vedas, the Holy Bible, the sacred Quran, Sri Adi Granth Sahib, and all other scriptures, are so many pages of the interminable Book of God, to which others may be added from time to time. In this materialistic age, it is necessary that the common spiritual truths be collected at one place and presented to mankind as a beautiful bouquet.

Awakened people all over the world are realizing the truth of this and are forming world conferences of religions to place before mankind the basic ideas common to all religions, so that spirituality may be placed on the footing of a regular science to which all seekers after Truth may turn, regardless of their castes or creeds, and without disturbing the social orders to which they belong.

The present-day attempt to hold an All-World Religious Conference, to establish a World Fellowship of Religions, to set up institutions for the comparative study of all religions, and to conduct investigations into the cardinal principles of Truth, Love and Non-violence, are steps in the right direction and point to the time when the whole world will be knit together in the silken bonds of one universal religion of love and humanity.

A PEEP INSIDE

We spend most of our time in admiring the outer surface of worldly things, and care not to see the very soul of the matter that lies hidden underneath and bespeaks the Great Creator, the creative life-principle, without which even the surface beauty cannot exist for a fraction of a second. Again, the outer raiment of everything is subject to disease, decay and, in course of time, to dissolution; while the Ultimate Truth at the core is the only Unchangeable Permanence. We, however, choose to analyze the husk or chaff of the matter, probe into its mysteries, try to conquer and harness it to our benefit. To a great extent, we have succeeded in our endeavours to press Nature's gifts into our service. But we have not cared to find out the immanent Presence that pervades everything and is the alpha and omega of the entire creation.

That person alone is wise who takes the pearl out of the oyster's shell and is not concerned with the latter. All outer coverings are provided by Nature for lodging therein something precious, something of intrinsic value. Would that we could first peep within before evaluating the things of the world. We have at present no idea whatsoever of the higher values of life, and we have not yet been able to separate the grain from the chaff. Ignorant as we are, we act like fools, dazzled by the surface glamour, and are deluded by shapes and forms, colour-designs that meet our gaze, little knowing that we are like bloated bubbles which shine for a while and in the twinkling of an eye vanish like airy nothings into thin air.

The Saints and Seers have referred, in Their precious writings, to the spiritual treasures that lie buried within each individual, and tell us of the way whereby we can delve deep and find them out. The secret of the very macrocosm may be found in the microcosm, and knowledge of the latter is the mother-knowledge or master-key that unlocks the steel portals of all knowledge, physical, intellectual and spiritual, with the Grace of the Master. The ancients rightly put before man the great question: "What is that wisdom or knowledge, by knowing which all else becomes known?" And in the same breath replied: "Self-knowledge or Atmavidya." Know thyself, or Gnothi Seauton, or Nosce Teipsum, has always been advocated by the ancient Greeks and Latins as the highest type of knowledge. It is also termed Paravidya, or the knowledge of the Beyond — something that lies beyond the grasp of gross senses and the intellect and is the inner science of the soul.

Apparently, a person is endowed with five sense faculties: sight, hearing, palate, smell and touch. Of all these the faculty of sight is the most important. Eyes are therefore rightly spoken of as 'windows of the soul.' Eyes do reveal the inner state of the mind — whatever it be, of peace and tranquility, or of anger and unrest. It is through the power of the eyes that a mesmerist or a hypnotist controls his subject. Some reptiles, too, transfix and paralyze their prey, making it immobile by casting their strong gaze on it. So is the case with an osprey or the fishing eagle. The wizard and the enchanter work their black art through the eyes. The mother transmits her love to a baby through her eyes. Even the domestic animals find comfort from the loving gaze of their master. Poets sing of the laughing eyes, sparkling eyes, liquid eyes, languishing eyes, drilling eyes, speaking eyes, and so on. The silent language of the eyes is wonderful indeed. Words fail to convey the expressiveness of the eyes. With no words, the eyes are still eloquent. Their silent speech and their appeal are universally acknowledged and go to the very heart.

In a state of wakeful consciousness, the seat of both the mind and spirit is located behind the center of the two eyebrows. In the dream state of semi-consciousness, this seat is transferred to the place of the thyroid gland in the throat, and in the state of deep slumber, or sushupti (unconscious state), it goes still further down to the navel. Since the Path of the Saints (the Science of the Spirit) deals with a state of Super Consciousness, the real search begins from the third eye or Nukta-i-Sweda or Divya Chakshu and goes upwards (and not downwards) from stage to stage, until Sach Khand or Muqam-i-Haq, the True Home of our Father, is reached.

This body is the temple of God. The Kingdom of God is within us. The whole of the macrocosm is said to be locked up in the microcosm. The true knowledge of the former can only be had with the knowledge of the latter. "A tap inside," is the wonderful dictum of the American philosopher, Emerson. Both the macrocosm and microcosm have been divided into four planes: (i) Pind, or the physical body, (ii) And (mental or astral body), (iii) Brahmand (causal or seedbody) and (iv) Sach Khand (the Eternal abode of Truth or Soul). All the planes below Sach Khand are liable to destruction at the time of Dissolution or Grand Dissolution, as the case may be. The idyllic home of the Saints and the Master-souls is located in Sach Khand and realization of this plane is their ideal. From Sach Khand to Pind, the reflection of the six centers in each of the higher planes may be seen in the corresponding centers of the lower plane, just in the same way as reflection of the sun may be seen in the number of pitchers full of water, and again of the latter, in turn, on a wall nearby. The six ganglionic centers of the body are (i) guda (rectum), (ii) indri (procreative organ), (iii) nabhi (navel), (iv) hirdey (heart), (v) kanth (throat or thyroid), (vi) aggya (behind the eyes).

The yogis, after Hatha Yogic exercises of dhoti, neti, basti, etc., first purify the physical body and then by constant practice, involving pranas, gradually pierce through the various ganglionic centers described above. They thus come up to aggya chakar behind the eyes — the whole process beginning from guda chakar, or rectum center, and passing through the spinal chord by means of Kundalini Yoga, or the serpentine power. This type of yoga is very arduous and is beset with difficulties and dangers. In it the pranas, or the vital airs, have to be controlled, regulated and directed properly, which is not easily done, and especially for an average householder aspirant to achieve it successfully is very difficult and time-consuming. The Saints do not recommend it in this age, when, physically, people are not fit to undertake this type of yoga. They altogether ignore the reflexes in the Pind, or the body, and start right from the aggya chakar at the union of Pind and And. This very center is the seat of the soul in a state of wakeful consciousness. They enjoin mental Simran, with undivided attention and loving devotion, of the electrified or highly magnetized and charged names of God given by them. By use of these words, one forgets the world around him, even his immediate environment and his very body, with the result that all his sensory currents are concentrated and focused on the Divine Ground, which lights up, becoming all aflame.

WHAT IT IS

Saint Matthew, in the Gospel, referred to this state in the following words: "The light of the body is the eye, if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light."

—Matt. VI: 22

Sant Tulsi Sahib also pertinently remarks in this context: "In the pupil of the eyes there is a hollow center called Til, and in that center lies the entire secret of spirituality, which thou canst find, if thou were to peep inside — behind the steel curtain of darkness."

Hazrat Moeen-ud-Din-Chisti, a Muslim saint of high order, stated: "Open thy inner eye so that thou witnesseth the glory of God. Close thy ears and thy mouth and become just all Eye so as to behold His glory."

The eyes, as said before, are truly the windows of the soul — opening casements of fairy-lands of old. Swamiji says: "These eyes are windows that open unto you the abode of God."

Guru Nanak, too, speaks of them as "In the palace of the soul (human body) there are two windows through which peep Lord Shiva and His consort Shakti (Parbati). Just open the eyes and see the blessed God within."

SPIRITUALITY

Sant Kabir also observed: "If thou were to attune thine eyes into one centre, a wonderful sight would meet thy gaze."

The light of the two eyes passing through the optic nerves meets at a point called third eye (Tisra Til, Shiv Netar, or Nuqta-i-Sweda), which too is illumined with a light which is shadowless and uncreated. From here the spirit enters the Sukhama or Shahrag, lying between Ida and Pingala, and hears the Sound of celestial strains (or the Sound-current) which is the very life of the universe. This process is instrumental in sustaining and guiding the spirit on its onward journey.

"Listen ye to the holy melody in the Sukhman by attuning your attention in the deep silence;

By attending to the ineffable music of the soul ye shall be rid of all desires and longings."

—Malar War M.1

"In this age pay heed to the inner Music,
By devotion to this, ye shall be freed from all pride."
—Asa M.3

As the spirit transcends the physical plane, it has to pass through various realms characterized by stars, the sun and the moon. There it is greeted by the luminous form of the Master, who takes charge of the spirit, with whom He proceeds by the Sound-current to reach the True Home of our Father. The path of the Saints is neither a religion nor a creed. Whosoever, whether a Hindu or a Muslim or a Christian, reaches the abode of bliss or Truth, is termed a Saint. Everywhere there are two types of Faqirs or orders of holy men of piety:

(1) Those who belong to the lower order, or Darja-i-sifli. They remain attached to ganglionic centers of the Pind, or the physical body, as the yogis do.

(2) Those of the higher order or Darja-i-Ulvi. Their sadhan, or spiritual discipline, begins with the aggya chakar, behind the eyes.

Some of the Muslim Faqirs belonged to the higher order. Hazrat Ibrahim says that he came across the Great Star and continued on his onward journey. Guru Nanak also refers to this Inner Star, which the Master in His grace might show to the aspirants.

“A bright star appearing on the horizon comes to view through God’s grace;

A devotee by good fortune may see it with the Master’s Word.”
—Tokhari M.1

The wise men of the East also followed a Bright Star which led them to Bethlehem and brought them to Christ. Tulsi Sahib also speaks of the Brilliant Star that meets the spirit at the threshold of Gaggan, or entrance to the astral plane. Hazrat Mohammed tells us that he did Shak-ul-Qamar (struck the moon in twain), which is significant enough and figuratively connotes that a soul went beyond this realm of the moon. Everyone who makes a journey to the spiritual realms has, of course, to do this Shak-ul-Qamar by passing through the moon.

Great is man. He has in him a drop of the Divine Consciousness like everything else in the creation. Though apparently he looks like a puny child of clay, yet he has untold possibilities hidden in him. He was made by God after His own image. He has the latent spiritual treasures buried in the depth of his mind. If he has a grain of faith in his powers, he can, as affirmed by Christ, move mighty mountains off their base, and may command the winds and the waters, as great souls did in every age. Thought force is the motor power behind all our acts. The very world is the result of His Will. God commanded: "Let there be light, and there was light." At His bidding the various elements sprang into motion and completed the work of creation.

The spirit, a spark from the Divine Fire, is also great and has similar possibilities within its scope. Unfortunately, its power is frittered away through mind and outgoing faculties. The rays of the sun do not burn anyone, but if they are passed through a convex lens, they converge at one centre and set on fire the things on the other side. So the spirit when mind-driven identifies itself with the bodily senses. It never thinks that it is apart from them, and is, in fact, the ruler and governor of the universe.

It is the great activating force and dynamic power behind all our thoughts, words and deeds. Even the heavenly bodies like the stars, the moon and the sun, move with its motion. All energy, physical or metaphysical, mechanical or electrical, magnetic or gravitational, atomic and nuclear, is the partial manifestation of this Primal Energy of God. It is creating, destroying and recreating endless systems and universes in the twinkling of an eye. But, unluckily, we do not realize this invisible power and are concerned only with its working, and we do not see the hidden hand behind the puppet-show of the world. We are trying all the while to understand the phenomenon of shadow and the shadowy things, but know next to nothing of noumenon. The spirit has thus completely and tragically forgotten its Godhood, its Divine origin and latent Divinity, which needs awakening before coming into its own, before it can work wonders and perform miracles like the Master-souls. Ignorance is the root cause of this deplorable state of things. Many do not know that the "Life spirit is more than the meat, and the body more than the raiment," as Christ said.

It behooves man to turn aside from worldly enjoyments, so that he may be blessed with heavenly gifts. Like the beautiful Joseph, driven into the well by his brethren, spirit has fallen into the well of the body, with mind and senses, and is in a helpless state. We could climb up if we could take hold of the wonderful rope-ladder provided by the Father, God, within each one of us. It is the Sound-current that can pull us up out of the blind and abysmal depths into the kindly light of God, and lead us into the manifold spiritual worlds, which are invisible to us at present.

The physical eyes can see only physical things, and both of these are subject to decay and death. But if our inner eye could be opened, we would be able to see immortal and imperishable planes. "An animal with his head downwards may well think of eating and drinking all the time, but fie on man, with his head erect, if he were not to look upward." (Shamas Tabriz). So long as a person does not rise above the sensual world, he remains ignorant of the high Heavens meant for his blessedness.

"So long as a spirit does not rise above the body-consciousness,

It remains a stranger to the spiritual realms beyond."
—Maulana Rumi

Once a spirit transcends the physical realm, it inherits as its birthright the spiritual kingdom — for the Kingdom of God lies within.

“If you would not leave the caravanserai of the body, How can you reach the true Home of your Beloved?”
—Hafiz Shirazi

This transcendence of the spirit from the senses is technically known in Sant-Mat as death in life (self-annulling), and in the Vedantic terminology as self-analysis. Christ calls it second birth or birth anew, and Muslims term it as “dying before death.” This immersion in God is true resurrection, or coming into new life. It is possible only through accepting the Path of any Master-soul — which is none other than that of the Sound-current.

The Master dwells amongst us as Word Personified, or as the Gospels tell us of Christ, that “the Word was made flesh and dwelt amongst us.” He, by transmitting His own life-impulse, temporarily raises us above the body consciousness and grants us a direct inner experience of the light-cum-sound principle, which, by a regular practice from day to day, can be developed to any length one may like.

This gradually leads the spirit from physical to astral or mental plane, then to causal or seed plane, and so on to the purely spiritual plane — Sach Khand — The True Home of our Father.

When ultimately the soul at its journey's end reaches the True Home of the Father and sees the splendor of Godhood in the ineffable resplendent light, one begins to see God in everything in the Universe. When Christ and Buddha rose above the body consciousness, They referred to the Way as leading to the Kingdom of God and the Nirvana pad respectively. The Muslims call it Muqam-i-Haq, and the Christians, New Jerusalem. Thereafter, Christ used to say: "Behold the Lord." And Guru Nanak would exclaim: "The Lord of Nanak is visible everywhere." The Sage of Dakshineswar, Sri Rama Krishna Parmhans, when questioned by young Naren, as Swami Vivekananda was then known, whether He had seen God, replied: "Yes, my child, I have seen Him as clearly as I see you; nay, more than that."

"Lord of Nanak in His fullness is present in all things and everywhere." —Suhi M.5

"The Invisible, the Incomprehensible, the Inaccessible, manifests Itself in full effulgence to the true devotee." —Sri Rag M.4

"God of Nanak is immanent in all forms and colours, whether visible or invisible." —Suhi M.4

Great is God, who is absolute, imageless, indescribable and peerless. He is neither sound nor light. In Himself, He is what He is; but in common parlance, He has to be expressed in words of limited import, coming out of the limited source of the finite intellect.

“God, the Infinite, of course, has to be described in finite terms;

How can I know what He is?” — Sorath M.5

When the Absolute Power came into being and became God-in-expression, there was vibration, which gave rise to Light and Sound principles, called by all Saints as Light and Udgit. God Absolute cannot be seen or heard, for nobody so far has seen God. God-in-expression, by way of Light and Sound Principles can, however, be seen and heard. This can only be experienced by the spirit, through inner vision and inner audition, which function when you rise above the body consciousness.

The Saints also call the Absolute and the God-in-expression by the name of Mahadayal and Dayal respectively. This Sound-current is responsible for the various creations, the spiritual planes and all the realms in varying degrees and orders. This Sound-current descends, making pure spiritual, spirituo-material, materio-spiritual and material planes, the last three of which dissolve in the dissolution and Grand Dissolution. Each of these planes has its individual presiding deities: Jot Niranjan, for example, is the Lord of And, the subtle or mental plane, and is the Creator of the material and physical universe, which is next below in the hierarchy. Onkar is the Lord of the Causal or Seed region and the Creator of the lower region of And, or subtle universe. Other Deities preside over other planes, in the ascending order of the system of creation. All of Them, of course, derive Their authority from Sat-purush or Sat Naam, or Dayal, or Ekankar, the highest Region.

The spirit, as it withdraws from the body, proceeds by degrees from one plane to another, until it reaches Sat Naam or Haq. From what has been said, it should be clear that so far the spirit is an entity quite apart from Sat Naam. The Over-Lord of all is called Khasum (Lord of all), Swami, Hari Rai, Maha-Dayal, or Nirala, unique in Himself and indescribable. The spirit gets merged in Him just as a drop of water loses itself in the ocean, or a ray of light in the sun.

“As water mingles with the water, So doth light merge in the light.”
—Gauri M.5

“As a ray of light gets absorbed in the sun and a drop in the ocean,
So doth the light of spirit, in the Great Light.”
—Bilawal M.5

This state baffles all description. The Muslim Saints declare this condition as “Hairat, Hairat,” and the Hindus, as “Aschraj, Aschraj,” and the Sikhs, as “Waho, Waho,” all of which are expressions of wonder. The teachings of most of the the Saints amongst Hindus and Muslims refer as far as Brahm. Very rarely do we find in them references to Parbrahm. The Masters have as their ideal something far beyond the latter — a stage safely beyond the sway of dissolution and Grand Dissolution.

XI
EXPERIENCE OF IDEAL RELIGION: AN INNER ACHIEVEMENT

For the unifying experiment of soul with Over-soul, one has to enter into the laboratory of the human body, just as a student of science enters the science room for a scientific experiment and closes all the doors and windows, so that the noise and stir from outside may not disturb him in his work. Again, on the table before him are arranged various articles and instruments, all neat and clean for handling, before he, under the guidance and instructions of the science master, starts making the experiment. He moves with a single-minded purpose, a well-pointed attention and a whole-hearted devotion. He may fail once or twice, but he does not lose heart in his endeavours and repeats the process over and over again until he succeeds. In exactly the same way, the spiritual experiment is to be carried on in the human body, after closing down all the physical senses, so as to keep out the noise and bustle of the world.

This process of going-in, consists in withdrawal of the sensory currents and focusing them at the seat of the soul, or consciousness, at a center behind the two eyebrows. In other words, the spirit, which at present is pervading the entire body from top to toe and is identified with the world, is gathered up and collected at one place, until one loses the very idea of having a body at all. Having closed down all the outlets of attention, the spiritual experiment is now to be started in the presence of the Master-soul and under His guidance and instructions, the whole process to be gone through with scrupulous attention and loving devotion.

Then you are no longer a physical entity but a pure spirit. So also is the Luminous Form of the Master — Sound Personified — Naam, Shabd, Sruti, Naad, Hidden Music, or call it what you will. To link the spirit with It can only be done when the mind is freed from mental oscillations and the intellect is at perfect rest, so that a halcyon calm is established both within and without.

Mere washing of the body can be of little avail. Inner cleanliness must precede outer cleanliness. The mind must first be cleansed and purified of all desires, anger, hankering, attachment and egotism, before you start with the spiritual experiment.

“By washing outside, without washing the mind within, one loses both here and hereafter, Ever tormented by lust and anger, he is lost and bewildered.” — Asa M.5

Prophet Mohammed, too, laid great emphasis on the purity of the mind. He used to say that Namaz (prayer) was the key to Jannat (Paradise), and the purity of heart was the key to Namaz; and again, that chastity was more than a half-way house on the Path Godwards.

St. Matthew tells us: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

But inner cleanliness cannot come by washing the body alone. The bodily dirt can, of course, be washed off by water, the pollution can be cleansed by means of soap, but the sinful mind is cleansed by communion with the Word. Guru Nanak therefore tells us:

"When the limbs of the body are besmeared, they are washed clean with water;

When the clothes get dirty and polluted, they are cleansed by soap;

When one's mind gets defiled by sins, it can be purified only by communion with the Word."

—Jap Ji, St. 20

We can commune with and practice the Word by linking the inner consciousness with the Sound-principle, but for this, one has, in the first instance, to subdue the mind and the senses.

“He who can control the ten senses, he may see the light of Heaven.”
—Gauri M.5

The spirit, which alone is to make the experiment, can do nothing when it is lost altogether in the stormy seas of passions. It is tossed on the billows like a leaky boat with no rudder to guide its course and is driven helplessly by the chance winds and waters around it.

Unless one gets an actual experience of the self and of God, one cannot believe and have unshakeable faith in the existence of God. The Saints and the Master-souls do, in fact, transcend the limitations of the three bodies, physical, astral and causal, and really get the experience of, and a contact with, the Reality within. As such, They are competent enough to guide mankind on the Highroad to God, for They do speak from actual experience and not from hearsay or secondary knowledge gathered from ancient texts or through learned priests and pandits.

“Listen ye to the true testimony of Saints;
They give out what They actually witness,”
—Ramkali M.5

Again, such God-men never ask a person to have just a blind faith in Their teachings. On the contrary, Their clarion call is: “Believe not the word of a Master-saint, unless thou hast an actual experience of what He saith.”

“Until I see the Truth with my own eyes,
I cannot be fully convinced of what the Master says.”
— Swamiji

“When I saw (the Truth) with my own eyes,
Then in truth I put faith in the Master's words.”
— Tulsi Sahib

The Master-souls believe in the direct testimony of the experiencing spirit. They, like Rishi Ashta Vakar, are capable of delivering goods right here and now. The Masters do not hold out empty promises, which may or may not come true, nor give false hopes, which may or may not materialize. Their religion is one of pure gold at the counter, and not one of mere credit. Why, then, should one engage in observance of rites and rituals, and performance of meritorious deeds, in the hope of securing some posthumous and uncertain rewards? Human birth is too precious and human life, alas, too brief to be frittered away in useless pursuits that may bear no fruit in the long run.

XII RIGHT TARGET

To escape from sorrow and suffering, and to achieve supreme and everlasting bliss, everyone makes a headlong dash but achieves nothing. A wise man is one who always makes a sincere effort in the right direction and never loses sight of his objective or ideal. In the absence of a definite goal or a target, one aimlessly and endlessly wanders in utter darkness. On the other hand, a clear-cut destination serves as a beacon-light that guides at every step, and each stride takes the weary traveller nearer to the journey's end.

Mere effort, without well-directed attention focused on the object of quest, cannot lead a person anywhere. Object and effort must, therefore, be in one straight line before there can be hope of success. A life of all effort with one's back to the objective will surely achieve nothing.

“A search for a thing in the wrong direction can never be fruitful.”
—Kabir

It would just mean blindfolded and endless gyrations, like those of an ox yoked to the oil press, for he moves all the day long with blinkers on his eyes. He actually does not get out of the vicious circle, and so makes no progress whatsoever.

In the world, wheresoever one may turn his eyes, one sees nothing but universal strife and unrest, creatures feeding upon creatures, and endless struggle for survival. All this plethoric confusion is indeed born from ignorance or lack of knowledge of the end or aim. Human life, like any other kind of life, has its own El Dorado, of which one can learn from the very Book of Life itself. All the sacred texts and all knowledge of the world are nothing but the result of unfoldment of the spirit at the intellectual centers within the human body.

All inspirations come from the soul within, the source of all knowledge and wisdom. Wonderful indeed is the house in which we live. God, even today, as of old, reveals Himself to the human soul, provided it is neat, clean and receptive. This body is a veritable temple of God, in which the spirit of man and the Spirit of God both live together, or else this body were a carcass fit to be consigned to the flames or to the graveyard.

Shamas Tabriz, a great Muslim saint of repute, says: "By the side of this grass blade of the human body, there flows an endless stream of life. Hidden in the heart of this atom is the light of a hundred suns." But alas! it is not given to man to know the mysteries of life without the aid of a Master-soul. The entire macrocosm lies buried in the microcosm. One has to dig deep within to get at the untold treasures of spirituality at the roots of the soul. One who wanders without in search of God, is but a skeptic and a heretic, and knows not the real Truth.

“Everything is in the body and nothing without it;

He who seeks without wanders in delusion.”

—Majh M.5

XIII
PATH OF THE MASTERS
The Only True Religion - Paravidya, or Knowledge of the Beyond

A person may have a short or a long vision. One may see right under one's nose and another may be able to penetrate into the far-off heavenly regions. There is a world of difference between these two. We should, therefore, seek out a person Who is fully established in God-hood or Divinity, and Who is a conscious co-worker with God. Then, we may be able to know and understand from Him God's ways and have access to an actual experience of God-realization.

God-knowledge is an inner science of the soul, and hence is known as Paravidya, or the knowledge of the Beyond, as contradistinguished from Apravidya, or experience and knowledge on the level of the senses. All scientific knowledge, with its vast scope, unlimited extent and untold possibilities, is, after all, a knowledge of the physical, material world, and does not constitute the fundamental knowledge. It tells us only of the material creation and provides food for the intellect, while Paravidya is concerned with the Creator or the Reality behind the creation, and provides food for the soul or spirit. Apravidya deals with the objects within the range of the human senses, the laws governing their growth, and how the same can be conquered and pressed into service for the benefit of mankind. Paravidya deals with the active life-principle, which works in the creation and through which we feel the life-impulse in all animated creation.

One may know a lot about the world and yet be altogether ignorant of the fundamental and basic life-principle working within him, which is the very life of his life and the very soul of his soul. Self-knowledge, then, is the key that solves all the problems of life. The knowledge of the world is of little avail if we know not what we are. Learning and knowledge do sharpen the intellect and expand the field of its activity co-extensive with creation itself (should it be possible), but the more one may express himself outwardly, the further he is removed from the ideal of real life — the life of spirit.

Bu Ali Qalander stated: "All that we see is a great optical delusion, a mere chimera and a mirage with no actual existence. All that we know is stark ignorance."

Swamiji averred: "A man of intuition and realization is an adept in the inner science, while a merely learned person is just an ignorant fool groaning under the dead-weight of books."

SPIRITUALITY

Science may tell us of physical objects and their interrelations, but it is totally ignorant of the creative power behind them. The goal of life does not consist in mere book knowledge and book learning, but consists in knowing the life-principle that is working in the entire Creation: the Word, the Kalma or the Naam, whatever name we may like to give It. According to Master-souls, real knowledge finds its efflorescence and fulfilment in contacting the Sound-current, Shabd or Naad, and not merely in the reading of scriptures or other books.

The science of the Masters is purely an inner science and has continued as such from time immemorial. It is called Paravidya, which is knowledge self-existent and not dependent upon any other knowledge. It is the most ancient, the most natural and the most perfect science, but cannot be had from books alone. The scriptures have, no doubt, made an attempt to deal with the spiritual science at some length, but all such efforts have proved abortive, since Reality, infinite as It is, could not be confined in the dead and dry leaves, nor is there any model outside with which It can be compared. Moreover, the writers with finite words and the limited intellect have no means to describe it adequately.

The Master-souls have always advised meticulous abstention from learned disputations or philosophic polemics, as Reality lies far beyond the range of the senses, the human mind and the human intellect. Indulging in intellectual pursuits does not change one's life. The Masters emphatically enjoin and ordain: "Be the doer of the Word and not the hearer alone." Their teachings are ready cash and do not admit of credit bargains. It is a practical science and not a mere theoretical reasoning. One must learn the theory first, say goodbye to one's logic, and then practice and see what one gains.

"The secret of success lies in practicing the discipline and not in reasoning and arguments;

Leave off all discussions and dissertations, and do the thing and take the Reality."

—Swamiji

In Mandukya Upanishad it is said that once a person, Shounack by name, went to the sage Bhardwaj and questioned: "Master, tell me of the knowledge that may make one Omniscient, or all-knowing."

The sage replied: "O Shounack! the knowers of Brahm tell us that in the world there are two types of knowledge: Apravidya and Paravidya. The former consists in the study of Vedas and other scriptures and all kinds of physical sciences, like astronomy, grammar, etc., but it does not bring one face to face with Brahm. The latter — Paravidya — is knowledge of the Beyond, with which Brahm, the Unchangeable Ashkar, is found. It is a practical subject and deals with self-knowledge and God knowledge, both of which lie beyond the pale of senses, mind and intellect. It can be realized by pure Atman, or spirit, only after it has, by right con-templation, freed itself by peeling off layer after layer the various koshas, or coverings, enshrouding it, and has actually transcended the physical, the subtle and the causal bodies. While the one is purely a bookish knowledge of the world, the other is a science of inversion, or withdrawal of the spirit from the world and from worldly objects and relations, and this is the root of all knowledge."

SPIRITUALITY

XIV
APRAVIDYA (OR KNOWLEDGE OF THE WORLD): ITS VALUE

The scriptures are indeed wonderful and precious records of personal experiences of the great Souls in their quest for Reality, and, as such are worthy of respect and adoration. The study of the scriptures has its own value. To a certain extent, these books awaken in us a desire for knowledge of God. By reading them, we too are moved to experiment in the science of life, to seek out some living Master competent to initiate us into the preliminaries of this science, for such a One can help and guide us on the spiritual Path from plane to plane. But beyond this, the scriptures cannot help.

The real help comes from a living Master alone, Who makes us repeat the experiment of old. For our satisfaction, He refers us to recorded results and conclusions for a general check-up with our own. Again, it is the living Master Who can correctly interpret to us the ancient texts, and impart to us the right import. Linked as He is with the Powerhouse or Reality, His utterances are those of God Himself, no matter if the words may appear to be coming out of a human mouth.

“His words are the words of Allah (God), though seemingly these come from Abdullah (the Servant of God).”

SPIRITUALITY

Guru Nanak explained: "O Lalo, I open my mouth just to utter words that come to me from my Beloved (God)." Such words of Divine Wisdom, coming directly from God-men are more precious than the most wonderful thoughts recorded in the holy books. All these, have no other value except that of creating in us a desire to know God, but cannot actually help us to introvert, to tap within, to withdraw and recede back and be linked with Word, Naam or Kalma. "But, unfortunately, the people of the world get entangled in the books, wholly and solely depend upon them as their mainstay in life, without attempting to do what the books say: "Get attuned with God." Without this attunement, one gets entangled in the world, tied to the scriptures, and one finds no bliss. The Srutis and Puranas all speak of the Way. But instead of freedom, one sinks deeper in the morass."

—(Ramayana by Tulsi Das)

A living Master, on the other hand, points to us a "Way-Out" and puts us on the "grand trunk road" leading to the Infinite. He becomes a guide to the weary soul torn by life's struggles in the world, a work which no book can possibly do.

Man is the most ancient of all sentient creatures on earth. All religions and all sacred texts came into being only after his advent. All religions were made for the benefit of man, and man was never intended for any religion. God made man and man made religions. Man is the author of all scriptures, but the grand mystery of life, which the latter describes, ever lies within the human breast. No one can know and solve it unless some Master-soul points the “Way-In” and helps the soul to withdraw and transcend all limitations, physical, astral and causal, before it is enabled to have a glimpse within, and to listen to the inner Divine Music.

Man is ever engaged in the recitation of scriptures and in expounding the sacred texts to huge congregations, but the pity of it is that he remains all the time far from the Reality that he studies for himself, preaches to others, and makes so much noise about.

“He studies the sacred texts for the sake of disputations, without knowing the Reality.

And Reality cannot be known but through a Master-soul who gives the true Way to the True One.”
—Maru M.1

There is a vital difference between man and scriptures. The former is a sentient being, endowed with consciousness and reason, and is aware of the same; while the latter are insentient and do not know that they are inert and lifeless and cannot impart correct knowledge without a true interpreter. How can the sacred books speak to, reason with, and try to convince, a living entity. With his book-knowledge and learning every person feels that he knows Reality, little realizing that the Infinite cannot be comprehended by finite means. Its power can be felt by the spirit alone, if properly attuned and adjusted under the guidance and instructions of some living Master-soul.

As long as we do not have an inner experience of the soul, we remain in utter darkness. Bookish knowledge becomes a headache as it draws and draws the mind out into the world through the senses, and makes us feel identified with the senses by constant association with the world, and by always thinking in terms of body and bodily relations around us. On the contrary, self-knowledge satisfies the innate craving and hunger of the soul for peace and happiness. All that we need learn is the Book of Man, for the greatest study of man is man.

When once a person is able to open the pages of the soul, and see the great and immense possibilities lying hidden therein, there dawns in him a new kind of awakening and new light, shadowless and uncreated. This is called regeneration or rebirth or resurrection. It puts an end to his otherwise endless sufferings, tribulations, wants and miseries, and he becomes established in his native Godhood and Divinity. The soul thus freed from worldly ties comes into its own, knows its truly Divine nature, and tries to understand and find its Source and Fountainhead, the Great Ocean of Consciousness, containing the three vital elements of Life, Light and Love. Attaining this Supreme Truth, there comes to the soul eternal bliss and perfect calm forever. But all this process of spiritual evolution, blossoming into the Universal Consciousness, comes only through the grace of some God-man, and not otherwise. That is the fundamental law since the dawn of creation and admits of no modification. Just as there is one God and one Reality, there is also one Path leading to Him — the Path of the Masters. This is nothing else but Surat Shabd Yoga, or Yoga of the Sound-current. A Muslim saint, therefore, affirmed:

WHAT IT IS

“Consign all thy books to the flames, and by constant remembrance of the Lord, transform thy mind into a veritable garden of Allah (God).”

The Vedas and Upanishads tell that Atma Sidhi, or Self-realization, cannot be attained by the study of, or listening to, the scriptures, as Self lies far beyond the scope of both the mind and the intellect. It can be achieved by intuition, an integral experience of the soul, through the grace of some Master-soul.

In verse 39 of Sukat 164 of Mandal 1 of Rig Veda, and in verse 8 of Chapter IV of Shwetarshweta Upanishad, it is stated that a person who knows the Primal Causeless Cause, Self-existent and Immanent, which is the very soul of the Vedas and in whom all gods and goddesses are deeply rooted, will not have anything to do with the Vedas. Those alone have real peace who are engrafted to Him.

Even if a person were to be well-versed in the four Vedas, eighteen Puranas, nine Viyakaranas, the six Shastras (six Schools of Indian Philosophy), and all other sacred scriptures of the world, he would be lost in the maze of the scriptures and remain as far removed from God as ever before. So long as the human soul does not come in contact with Shabd or Word (God in action), it wanders in the world like a Chandool (parrot), who on the spur of the moment begins imitating whatever it hears.

All philosophic disputations are the offspring of dull and drab intellect and the source of headache. It would certainly be better, by far, if one were to leave off all knowledge and learning and grasp the one and the only pivotal stillpoint — Reality — the bestower of all bliss and happiness. Bulleh Shah, Guru Nanak and others also speak in the same terms.

“Why do ye bother with so many books, for these are a source of headache;

Learn ye the mystery of the Centre, and leave off the vicious circle of endless and idle talk.”

— Bulleh Shah

WHAT IT IS

“One may read cart-loads of books and carry a heavy load on his head;

All such studies forge but strong fetters and keep one bound therein.

One may read endlessly from year to year, and from month to month, nay, every moment of his life;

O Nanak! only one thing counts, and all the rest but make one self-conceited.”

—Asa War M.1

“The study of the scriptures, including the Vedas, far from freeing the mind of shackles, makes one all the more egocentric.”

—Sorath M.5

Hafiz, a well-known Persian poet, goes to the extent of saying that so long as a person does not leave off intellectual wrangling, he remains ignorant of the Reality. Man must take note of one thing — that he must transcend himself if he wants to escape from all limitations and shortcomings.

If any problem has to be solved, one must apply himself heart and soul to its solution. The Upanishads, with a clarion call, declare that Atmavidya, or self-knowledge, dawns only when the senses are at rest, the mind is stilled and the intellect, too, is equipoised. Learning and knowledge may be additional assets for a spiritual person, but certainly constitute a crown of thorns for the worldly wise.

“Knowledge may adorn a spiritual adept,
But it is a headache for the carnal mind.”

—Maulana Rumi

In Brihadaraniak Upanishad it is mentioned that an unlettered person is steeped in dark ignorance, and a learned one is in still greater darkness. Why? Because a man of great learning can hardly know the glory and greatness of the Saints and their Sainly Teachings.

The Saints and Sages, therefore, lay stress on a life of spirituality. Book-learning has no real value for Them. The hearsay words of wisdom and knowledge derived from books are all lifeless, and, as such, cannot transmit life-impulse to others. It is just like talking of sweets and not partaking of them. Should a person go on repeating the word pudding for a century, or even keep meditating on the various ingredients that go to make a pudding, he cannot relish the pudding nor can he have any satiation unless he actually eats it.

Bhai Gurdas says the same thing, in this context:

“By repeating the word sugar, one tastes not the sweetness of sugar,

By repeating the word fire, one is not rid of the cold,

WHAT IT IS

By repeating the word physician, one is not cured of the malady,

By repeating the word suffering, one never escapes therefrom,

By repeating the word sandalwood, one never enjoys its fragrance,

By repeating the word moon, one never gets its soothing light,

By repeating the word jnana, one never gets out of ignorance,

It is only the actual practice that brings in Heaven's light."

—Kabit Sawai 452

PATH OF THE MASTERS: ITS THREE FUNDAMENTALS

Success in spirituality depends on three factors:

- (1) Satsang (spiritual congregation).
- (2) Satguru (living Master-soul).
- (3) Sat-Naam or Shabd (Word).

(1) SATSANG. The term is comprised of two words: Sat, meaning God — the Unchangeable Permanence, and Sang, denoting union. It stands for contact with God. It can be had by the soul only when it shakes off all the trappings, physical, astral and causal. It also means an association with a living Master-soul Who is an embodiment of the awakened life-principle in Him. Sat, or life, in its fullness, is manifest in Him. He teaches nothing but spirituality, which is the source of all life and without which people lead merely a deluded and unsound existence on the plane of the senses. He tells us that besides the senses, mind and intellect, there is yet another power, greater than all these, for it quickens them with life, namely, the spirit or soul. It is, in fact, the only motor power in the body, and the pity of it is that we are altogether ignorant of it and have never even given a thought to it. It is the problem of problems, the most important and vital, and yet the most ignored. An association with a Saint, a Sage or a Master-soul will directly dye an aspirant in the colours of spirituality, in just the same way as proximity to fire gives warmth and nearness to ice, cold. The fact is that "God does not live on the highest heaven nor in the depths of the earth, for no space is sufficient to contain Him. But he truly resides in the bosom of a God-man." —Maulana Rumi

WHAT IT IS

"My mind like a bird flew heavenwards,
The paradise was all deserted as the Lord resides with His saints." —Kabir

It may be said that such a person is as much a Polarized God as an electric switch is a polarized powerhouse, or a safe sea-beach is a suitable place where one can have a comfortable dip in waters of the sea. The true criterion of such a Satsang is that talks delivered there are always confined to spirit, its nature, its place and value in human life, its perennial Source and how to gain the same. The God-man thus shows how to escape from sufferings, decay and death, which are rampant in the world and to which all living creatures are subject.

SATSANG IS OF TWO TYPES: OUTER AND INNER

Outer Satsang: It is Satsang externally. It denotes the company of a Master-soul, attending His discourses and talks on spirituality, wherein

SPIRITUALITY

He describes Atma Sadhan, or spiritual discipline, and in an inimitably loving way, peculiar to Him, exhorts the aspirants to devote some time for Atma Sidhi, or self-realization, which is the first and last essential for God-realization. This part of His work may, for the sake of convenience, be termed theory of spiritual science.

“In a gathering like this, one gets a true clue to God,

For verily God shines therein through the God-man.”
—Majh M.4

“In a spiritual congregation, one hears of nothing but Naam,

And Naam alone is discussed therein, in all its varied aspects.”
—Sri Rag. M.1

“No congregation can be termed a Satsang
Unless it is presided over by a Master-Soul.”

—Maru M.3

Inner Satsang: This is Satsang within. It consists in entering the laboratory of the human body, according to the instructions of the Master, withdrawing the sensory currents from the body by means of Simran and Dhayan (remembrance and concentration), and finally in linking the soul with the Dhun, the eternal Sound-current in the body, through Bhajan, attuning the direct link between the individual soul and Oversoul. The soul thus attains by degrees Mok-

WHAT IT IS

sha, or liberation from sufferings, decay and death — the most deadly foes of all mortals. This part of his mission may be termed Surat Shabd Yoga, and it constitutes the practice in spiritual science.

(2) SATGURU

Sant, or Satguru, is the living embodiment of God, for Life, Light and Love — the three attributes of Godhood — are fully present in Him. He is charged through and through with Sat, or true Life, true Light and true Love. He is a fountain-head of Godhood and Love, and is competent to lead all the aspirants God-ward. He is a true guide on the grand road of spirituality. He is a God-man. The contact with God can be established only through His grace, for no one else can do this. The scriptures may tell us much about spirituality, for they constitute a wonderful storehouse of recorded spiritual experiences of ancient sages and seers, but they cannot give us a living touch and an actual experience of spirituality, which may be caught like an infection from the love-laden eyes of a person imbued with spirituality. Just as a lighted candle can light the unlighted candles, so also spiritual life impulse can be transmitted by a spiritually living person.

SPIRITUALITY

“He alone lives who is in touch with God within,

O Nanak! all the rest are really dead.”

—Majh War M.1

A God-man is truly the mouthpiece of God. God speaks through Saints and Seers, and reveals Himself through His prophets. The nearness of a living Master is the greatest blessing that one can have. A loving gaze, a kind word from Him, are enough to unlock a thrill of Divine happiness in any human soul. He may at any moment open the floodgates of spirituality and overwhelm a shrivelled soul with the waters of life. He is the bread of life and the water of life, and whosoever partakes of it, enjoys everlasting life and ever after walks in the Light of God.

Christ says: “Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.”

—John 3-14

“I am the Light of the world, and he that followeth Me, shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the Light of Life.”

—John 8-12

But much depends on the simplicity and sincerity of the seeker, his loving devotion and faith and, above all, his receptivity, for he who comes brimful already cannot possibly take in anything else.

WHAT IT IS

The Guru, or the God-man, is the ideal. His body is just a transmitter pole, from which the radioactive waves of God-hood make themselves manifest in the world, and are felt by all who come near that Pole.

(3) SATNAAM

This is the original name of God-in-Action, the great and grand motor power behind the entire creation. Saint John speaks of it:

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made. In Him was life, and the life was the light of man. And the light shineth in darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not.”

The Muslims call it Kalma, and declare that the 14 Tabaks or divisions (into which they consider the universe as divided) were created by it. The Hindus term it Naad, and ascribe to it the manifestation of 14 Bhavans, or regions. The Sikh scriptures call it Shabd or Bani, the Upanishads speak of it as Udgit, and the Vedas give it the name of Sruti or Akash Bani. The Saints refer to it as Naam or Shabd, and there is no place where the vibrations thereof are not felt. This Naam or

Sat-Naam is, then, the controlling power of the universe. It is the great cementing force whereby various elements, so very divergent in nature, are held together in the wonderful mosaic of the many-coloured dome of the universe. It is the string of life running through the entire creation, and thus, the connecting link between the Creator and His creation. Kabir Sahib says:

“Ram Naam is the only Reality, and anything besides is subject to decay and dissolution. Always meditate and concentrate on this Reality, for death knows no calendar and may, at home or abroad, pounce any moment upon thee with its murderous claws.”

“He who alone knows of Naam as I would like him to do,

I take hold of him and support him through.

The natural inner music is continuously flowing of itself,

But only a rare soul knows of this communion;

The all-pervading spirit surges through every pore of the body.

The true Simran consists in perpetual attuning of the soul with the inner music, without any outer aid (of lips, tongue, throat or the heart).

He who contacts this hidden crest-jewel, is our true friend.”

—Kabir

WHAT IT IS

“The all-pervading spirit of God saves one from births and deaths.

A communion with the Word ferries one across the sea of life.”
—Gond M.5

This is the ‘Voice of the Silence,’ as the Theosophists describe it, for it can be heard only in the silence of the soul. The elan vital, or the vital currents of life, can be felt in the inner depths of the mind. It is something subjective and can be experienced and felt only within, through the kindness of some Master-soul.

XVI

THE PATH OF THE MASTERS:

The Three Practices of Methods Prescribed

There are three distinct entities in the composition of a person: (i) physical body, as made mostly of solid matter; (ii) mental body, as made of subtle matter, and (iii) causal, or the seed body, that holds the first two.

The spirit or soul works through all the three bodies. The various bodies, sooner or later, are bound to disintegrate and dissolve, while the soul is indestructible, an ever-living entity beyond the sway of Kaal (time) or death. It is the spark from the Divine Forge, at which the Life Current is forged to shape the world and to bring it into being. The human body is the veritable temple of God, and this microcosm simply works on the lines of the macrocosm.

“Macrocosm is in the microcosm, and he who seeks the macrocosm must find it in the microcosm.”
—Dhanasari Peepa

Truth, or Naam, alone is imperceptibly working both in man and in the universe. God and His Spirit are but one in essence. To know God, one must first know the self within. Without self-knowledge through self-analysis, the realization of Oneness within and without does not dawn. The Mohammedan Saints also impart that Alam-

WHAT IT IS

i-Saghir (the little world) is a prototype of Alam-i-Kabir (the greater world).

Thrice blessed indeed is man. He is the roof and crown of things! To be a complete man is the culmination of human existence. "Be ye perfect as thy Father in heaven is perfect," is one of the cardinal principles in Christianity. Kabir says that the devotee should be like God himself. This perfection must, therefore, be three-fold: physical, mental and spiritual. To a certain extent, one has to depend on his own individual effort, but much depends on outer aid. In Nature fruit trees fructify in a much shorter time if they are scientifically fed than if left to themselves. The same principle works with still greater force in the case of sentient and conscious human beings. A person with the help of a Master-soul can more readily, more easily and more quickly gain spiritual attainments than otherwise. But the association and aid must be sought from a perfect Master, well-versed not only in the theory but also in the practice of the science of spirituality.

Again, an aspirant has to be very particular in the matter of his food, his conduct and his environment, all of which exert a powerful influence on his body and mind. A simple Satvik diet (barring meat, fish, fowl and eggs), abstinence from all intoxicants, idle talk and idle pursuits, a spirit of detachment from the glamour of the world, are therefore enjoined as discipline on the spiritual Path. With this background, the Sadhak is then initiated into practices that are conducive to his spiritual welfare: (i) Simran, (ii) Dhyan, and (iii) Dhuni Abhyas (charged repetition, spiritual contemplation, and sound-current absorption).

Our mind at present is engaged in the Simran of the world and worldly objects, so much so that we are completely identified with them. We know not if we have a separate existence apart from these things. Howsoever hard we may try to introvert the mind, we cannot do it. The thoughts of friends and relations, of office files and records, of law courts and law books, of medicines and diseases, of profits and losses, of wages and strikes, etc., come up on the mental screen as in a motion-picture house. In order to wean the mind from these, one has to do Simran of God's names and to meditate on something else. The Saints, therefore, enjoin for a Sadhak, or aspirant, Simran with the tongue of thought and Dhyan with the eye of thought. With these two mental processes, the mind gradually learns to get equipoise, and there comes a lull in its ever-vacillating tendencies. Lastly, one has to listen to the Voice of the Silence with the ears of thought.

Shabd or Naam or Word is continuously vibrating within each one of us, for we live by it. The soul and Sound-current are one in essence. There is such wonderful music in it that the Hydra-headed serpent of the mind, on hearing it, gets altogether docile. The attention (the focus of the spirit), hitherto a slave to the mind, is attracted, attuned and absorbed in the inner strains of music. It is no longer capable of serving under the mind, and the result is that the latter is rendered helpless and falls off as a carcass. The spirit, thus drawn by the Sound-current from the ocean of physical existence, loses its separate entity and becomes one with the current. Though one may hereafter continue to be in the world, to spin out his allotted span of life, he is a Jiwan Mukta (a liberated being or a depersonalized spirit). He is no longer a bonded slave of the mind and the senses, but is now firmly established in Godhood, basking perpetually in the Divine Inner Light, listening to the Divine Music in his soul. The detailed instructions in this three-fold Atma Sidhi, or spiritual practice, are given by the Master to every Sadhak (aspirant) at the time of initiation.

By Simran and Dhyān the sensory currents in the body gradually get collected and concentrated at the center of the spirit between the two eyebrows. From here, the spirit is led on by the Sound-current and, after traversing the various planes, reaches its Native Home, Sach Khand or Mugam-i-Haq, which is the Source and the Fountainhead of the Sound-current itself. This is Moksha, Nijat, Nirvana or Salvation, in the true sense of the word.

Sant Kirpal Singh Ji
(February 6, 1894—August 21, 1974)

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Considered by many people who met him in the East and in the West to have been a living example of a true Saint of spirituality, Kirpal Singh was born in a rural setting in Sayyad Kasran in the Punjab (then in India, now in Pakistan) on February 6, 1894. He followed the career of a civil servant in the government of India, and retired on his own pension in 1947.

Following instructions from his Master (Sawan Singh Ji Maharaj, 1858-1948), he founded and directed RUHANI SATSANG. He was commissioned by God and authorized by his Master to carry forward the spiritual work of connecting sincere seekers after God with the WORD (or NAAM). He continued in that capacity until he left the earth plane on August 21, 1974.

Elected four times, consecutively, as President of the World Fellowship of Religions, he upheld the truth that, though the various religions are different schools of thought, the aim of all religions is one and the same. Kirpal Singh visited the major cities in the United States on the occasions of each of his three world tours: in 1955, in 1963-64, and in 1972, staying in the West for three months or more, each time.

From his study at the feet of Sawan Singh Ji Maharaj and from his own personal inner experiences of a spiritual nature, Kirpal Singh was eminently qualified to convey to sincere people everywhere the importance of self knowledge and God realization.

SPIRITUALITY

Appendix: Sant: The Master

In Sanskrit, the word "Sant" (which is the origin of the English word "Saint") means "Master of the Highest Order." Both the word and the concept are unfamiliar in Western thought, which tends to lump all exceptionally pious devotees together as "saints," regardless of the actual degree of inner attainment. In this essay, dating from the early 1950's, the Master clarifies the issue by telling us exactly what a "Sant" is and how we may recognize one. This was published in the October 1970 Sat Sandesh.

Perhaps one might ask: "What sort of a person is a Sant about whom so much has been said, as distinguished from commonly known grades of Masters, such as Sanyasis, Rishis, Munis, Tikhishwars, Munishwars, Yogishwars, past Masters, founders and ministrants of religions, etc.?"

No doubt a Sant (or Sadhu) is an ordinary man to all external appearances. He is, however, a great deal more: a "perfect man" with experience of outer and inner life. Outer living may be different in various countries, but inner experiences wherever known are the same; although they speak of differing phases according to the degree of inner approach. These are not denied, as far as they go, but direct and full phases are announced by Sants who also offer experience along with their theory. What more is needed by man?

Voluminous books recording experiences of Sants in this science of Nature are full of their praises. Still, it is very difficult to know more about a Sant even if he is your nearest neighbor or daily passes on the same road.

History shows that once the Czar of Russia, moved by the fate of certain exiled subjects of his dominion working as shipbuilding laborers on a far-off coast, went in disguise to them, worked with them for a number of years, and persuaded them to return to their homes. The laborers protested that they had been turned out of the dominion and there was no hope for them. The Czar assured them that he had influence with the royal court, including some with the Czar, and that there would be no trouble. Those who believed him, agreed to accompany him to their homes. On the way their faith in their fellow worker was confirmed when the Czar, disguised as a laborer, was greeted warmly by his men. At last, when all saw in the end that the distinguished laborer was none other than the Czar himself, sitting on the throne before their eyes, they heaved sighs of relief. How could they have known him or believed him before?

The Unseen High One uses a very selected human pole, who, by dint of his continued, untiring and unending endeavors, unequaled in self-sacrifice and boundless love for Him during life, contacts Him within himself, becomes His conscious co-worker, and is utilized and assigned the mission of giving solace to afflicted seekers of Him, to rescue them from the worries of the world, and to unite all such ones to He who owns them.

Man needs man to understand, and so a Sant is the High One in the guise of a man to whom those longing for Him can approach. The Unseen Almighty has His own law in this respect. Thus, Sant is God plus man. He is a mouthpiece of God, or if one is pleased to accept it, he is God in person, "personified God." He is most sacred "personal God"¹ invested with all powers and authority, and is a living altar to pray to, to seek solution of man's problems from birth to death and after; in short, to extricate man from the network of worries, and bestow true salvation.

Thus God moves as ordinary man in disguise. As a man externally no one can recognize him, but only one who contacts a Master Saint within himself according to the science, i.e., the laws that He has laid down for man. Externally, if one takes a Master Saint as an ordinary man, he cannot derive any more benefit from him than he could from anyone of the level that he takes him for. If one takes him as a superman, much more benefit can be derived, and if he is taken as all-in-all, still more. If one contacts a Master within himself, he gets all and everything. It is not a matter of one's thinking range, which is blind faith. It depends on the extent of understanding of this Divine Science. That which comes from the heart will go to the heart.

A question was once put to Hazur Baba Sawan Singh Ji Maharaj: "Bodies of all men are made of the same mud (i.e., material flesh, blood, etc.), what superiority is attached to the personal body of a Sant which makes him superior to any other man?"

Hazur replied: "No doubt, all bodies are composed of mud, but the body of a Sant is made of the purest particles of it available in the universe. Every word, every look, every move, every touch, even the aura of a Sant is endowed with mercy, love and the grace of God. His society is specially electrified and the atmosphere charged. The purer the heart of a man, the more he realizes and feels. Even those who listen to him, accept and absorb what he says, are not left blank. They are benefited.

When a Sant walks on the ground, the land becomes pure and sacred. When he walks over the grass or, in walking, crushes any worms or insects, they get a man's body direct, irrespective of the cyclic order and stages of evolution of creation of life on earth in Nature's science.² The fruit trees and plants from which the cereal comes, which a Sant uses in his diet, also get human bodies directly. The tree, a portion of a branch of which the Sant uses as his datan (toothbrush), and the cows who provide milk for the Sants also get man's body direct. Similarly the mares, etc., Sants ride, the ants or worms whose bodies touch the flowing water in which a Sant bathes, or any flying bird who happens to see the naked portion of the body of a Sant also get the same advantage."

An ordinary man would take this as an enigma or joke, and would hardly be prepared to believe because his testing stone is his intellect, and he knows nothing of the Power of God, or such powers delegated to or concessions inherent in the bodies of Sants, unless he acquires experience in the noble science that has been designed by God Himself for man. It is true that God is unseen to external eyes, but He has not left man all forlorn on earth, so far as approach to Him is concerned. The door of approach, the starting point, for any search or research in this connection lies within man. The Sant is the means.

SPIRITUALITY

Man therefore must adopt a course different from that upon which he is attempting to make headway; but proud of his "learning" in many fields, he goes astray; just as one examining a bowl found in the ruins of a far-off country begins to ponder, speculate and concentrate his imaginings on the potter who made it ages ago. He draws a sketch of the potter in his mind, makes images of him and his implements, and in so doing writes books, one after the other, trying to impress others and prove that his findings are true and deserve praise. Alas, man is far from the right track.

Simple is Truth and still simpler the language of Truth spoken by the Sants, whose simple and brief words uttered from the heart satisfy, pacify and console the most bewildered and troubled souls. They speak involuntarily and unaffectedly.

A Sant is the mouthpiece of God, and God Himself speaks through the human throat.

Maulana Rumi

As a man, a Sant is always submissive to His Will in happenings in life. Bear and forbear is a Sant's creed. He is like a sandalwood tree on which a feller's axe strikes its blows, but the tree continues to give forth its fragrance, even to the edge of the blade which cuts it.

In the company of a Sant the agitated mind becomes still. He stands for the good of man and does his work as a friend or brother, if one's mind is not prepared to accept him as a guide. He remains concealed, but by his very concealment is added fame to fame and glory to glory.³ He does not see who a person is, what position he holds, or to what school of thought or race he belongs. He simply sees that one coming to him is an ensouled human being – man. The Sant is so watchful and alert a merchant of his precious goods (i.e., the spiritual science) that anybody who thinks himself the most clever, the wisest, the most highly educated, a performer of miracles, etc., cannot get even the scent of what he has, though one may try his very best. The Sant loves theists as well as atheists, or even the worst sinners or those who are drowned in sensual pleasures of the world, just as a loving mother will not throw away her child completely covered in dirt and filth.

It takes a Sant to know a Sant. A Sant alone can describe a Sant. His presence in the midst of any society or social group is its most precious adornment. He may be seen going from one place to another, but he does not go there for any propaganda or selfish motive, but is attracted by the strong silken ties of love in certain hearts. He is the uplifting leader of moral cleanliness and spirituality. Whether a metal be gold or iron, it is mere metal to a Sant. He is not affected by offers of position of dignity or indignity, honor or dishonor, nor moved by joys and sorrows, praise or censure. Sovereignty, wealth, and beauty of women are no attractions for a Sant. He is far above the influences of lust, anger, greed, attachment and ego. He is unaffected.

Sants or Sadhus⁴ are above the three gunas. They are selfless and reveal the Truth only. They are “Children of Light” – beacons of the world. It is very seldom that one comes across them – real ones. Like wrestlers, they are not made in one day, nor are they from any school of academic learning. They have had the experience of several past lives. Every Saint has a past and every sinner a future. They are common assets of humanity. They are experienced personalities who have analyzed themselves and realized God, and can help to put us on the same path. Whatever one has, he can give it to another.

How can the ordinary man know that a Master Saint (Guru or Satguru) visits the heavens daily, takes charge of his disciples’ karma, winding it up and liquidating it under his care and supervision? There are thousands of disciples and how can the Master manage it? Man hears of these things only occasionally. Sit by a Sant and you will feel mental composure, calmness, and a tranquility never experienced before, and much more too. The minds of those who have the least spark of love of God in them, experience an awakening even when they just hear that there is a Master who can really guide them to the threshold.

WHAT IT IS

In going to a Master we acquire:

1. Reciprocity of heart;
2. Staying still behind the eyes;
3. Contact with the "Divine Link."

In the places of pilgrimage, the holy ones of olden times bestowed at least these three boons which are stepping stones direct to spirituality. Words and theories have now been substituted for these prerequisites of the Divine Science.

The teachings of the Sants are, in brief:

Man has valuable treasures of Divinity hidden within him. Acquire the knowledge and experience that made the Masters so high and holy, and unlock the doors giving entrance into the Divine in practice – not intellectually – right now, during your present lifetime. Purity of heart and the simple request is all that is needed. You have to pay nothing for this Science of Nature.

Into the society of Sants come men of all characters, including those proud of their ideas, good or bad. Sants however do not employ police to keep away those who, in the eyes of the public, are undesirable; and the strange thing is that their own censure is the only doorkeeper that automatically keeps them away.

The problem now before man is how to recognize and identify a true Master from among so many he meets, hears and reads about. We are used to seeing outwardly.

SPIRITUALITY

There are hardly any universal or common marks on the person of a Sant. Still, we need some clues, some key. We may point out, "Rishis and Munis are defined as those who possess knowledge of the past, present and future. Yogis, in addition to that, have miraculous powers to exhibit and attract. Of gods, it is said they do not cast a shadow. At least something must be said about genuine Sants and Sadhus by either the ancients or moderns."

The reply is that for the ordinary layman and the negative-minded man, there can hardly be any indications that a man may be a Sant. For the slightly advanced on the path of love of God, and for those of astute observation, there can be given some hints and clues. Much patience is needed, however, to discover them:

1. Sants say that God is within man.

(This is emphasized and repeated everywhere today, so it is not a convincing clue for modern man.)

2. The eyes and forehead of one genuine Master bear a strange contrast and striking resemblance to another.

(This is realized by very few of those who have lived during the lifetimes of two such Masters, and who have minutely observed these features or signs in their faces. It is, in fact, the one Benign Power working through two different human poles one after the other, or even side by side, which is also the case occasionally.)

3. *They make visible or invisible three vertical veins on their foreheads at will.*⁵

(This remarkable sign by which a Sant can be recognized is mentioned by the ancients and is not discernible by many until they learn of it and desire confirmation by this means.)

4. *When sitting in the presence of a real Sant, even with open eyes, the sensory current of the body begins to convene, gather up, and rise involuntarily and unknowingly until felt.*⁵

(This experience is given by a Sant to a very few of the selected ones. Ancient seekers, aware of this "test of self", have corroborated this.)

5. Sincere aspirants are given the experience of withdrawal of the spirit current at the very first sitting at the time of initiation.

(This is open to all coming under the protective fold of the Master. He may be a new disciple or an old one who comes to the Master to realize and correct any mistake under which he may be laboring. This experience is also open to those who received instructions from a self-styled master in whom he has had faith, but from whom he has had no experience.)

As a matter of fact, no one can know or find a true Master, unless and until the Master is pleased to reveal his own identity himself, to the innermost satisfaction of one desiring to confirm his faith in the Master. This is done according to the extent of one's receptivity, and to the degree that his capacity to understand, and his love entitle him. It depends wholly on the kindness and sweet mercy of God through a Master. Some are given clues according to their desires. The faith of some in their Master is confirmed when a disciple is saved miraculously from some danger. A favorable response to the prayers made to the Master confirms faith in others. There are others who have book-knowledge and are satisfied by the examples of others; so they get confirmation that way. Masters have the knowledge of measuring the capacity and range of everyone's intellect, and bestow faith accordingly. Sants know the merits and evils of everyone but they never disclose them.

Divine Grace is never slow. A good mother says not, "Will you?" but gives. From among the aspirants, they are given the lion's share of Divine Faith in the Master who come with downcast heads, heavy hearts and the shuddering anguish of a lost soul, speechless with anxieties, to unburden their worries. Meekness is no weakness. It is a strong, cemented road of humility which leads to the Benign Reality.

Experience is the only criterion. If a Master is able to give us experience, we can accept him as one who knows the Divine Science. One who is connected and can contact, can give us contact.

WHAT IT IS

If one is in the first or second grade, and someone else sits by him for a whole lifetime, he will never attain a high degree of education.

Man hesitates and fears to approach a Master Saint because his living is tarnished, maybe less in one and more in another. Never fear to go to a Master Saint because you are a sinner. He is meant more for sinners than for others. He has a remedy for every wound. Approach him and through him will be found a way to become rid of sin. If one is far away, he can be contacted through correspondence. He has means and methods to meet every case. He is competent.

* * *

It will be easy now to realize that Para-Vidya has a scientific basis, though it differs a bit from the ordinary system. It is not a scholastic system of philosophy based on intellectual cleverness, much less is it a new code of social or moral conduct, which are elementary steps. It is no blind faith, but a to-the-point digest and clear-cut practical science dealing with self-analysis, i.e., knowledge of self in man, for the one who observes minutely. All authority is, of course, vested in the practical Master Saint.

When a man is in one crowd, he will talk as the crowd talks. If he joins another crowd he will talk as it does, and so on. But if he takes his seat on a high mound he is able to see and hear all, and to judge the actions of man better. A Sant is like such a person. He looks down from on high upon the world. He speaks of the state of man struggling for existence, pretending that he knows all, when in reality he knows little. Man does not know how to live, what to do, what to eat, how to act in life nor why. He has to depend upon his parents and teachers from childhood to youth, for all of his physical troubles he has to depend upon his doctor, for earning his livelihood upon his employer, and employers in turn upon their subordinates. For instruction in all mundane affairs he is dependent upon society; when faced with unforeseen dangers and surrounded by suffering, and when not comforted by anything, he depends upon the words of his minister or priest; and finally he finds that all he can do is submit to Nature and her laws. In vain he puts his trust in bodily strength and in the stability of the future; at the same time he makes his own way by heedlessly pushing others down the ladder. Little does he know that he can stand still in a flowing stream, but not in the world of mankind.

Sants pity man. They care not for their own personal comfort, and day and night advise man that his life is short, very short; but the worth of holy Masters has been underrated ever since wealth and pleasure have been overrated. Repeatedly Sants have warned man that in this Kali Yuga (Iron Age) man has been allotted a limited number of breaths in one lifetime. He has been given roughly 26,000 breaths a day (the amount varies from person to person and is determined by the prarabdhi or fate karma). While sitting he spends 12 a minute; when walking, he spends 18 a minute; when sleeping, 30; and in sexual intercourse, 64. These breaths are his entire legacy and wealth in bodily life. Thus the common saying goes, "A man is known to be mortal by two things – sleep and lust." Sants advise man to put this wealth in a secure bank of proper adjustment in order to lengthen life and derive the utmost from it. They emphasize that there is no other way; but man will not listen. Sants further say that man is subjected to the law of evolution in 8,400,000 kinds of embodied creation and gets one body after the other; and in each body is further chained with iron fetters of the inexorable law of Nature, Karma: first "work and act" and then "cause and effect;" and he must rid himself of this cycle of repeated births and deaths in order to attain peace. With open eyes, man watches living beings, even man, suffering, dying with untold pain and agony; but he smiles away the Truth as revealed by Sants, saying, "We know better. We have our own solid science based on facts; we have our inventions, our atomic energy, etc."

Thus the less man thinks, the more he talks, and things not understood are admired. Notwithstanding all this, the Sants continue pushing on with their mission with perseverance; and offering experience in the Divine Science, Para Vidya, to those who come to them. The Name of the Lord is a very strong tower. The sting of reproach is the truth of it. Self-evident Truth requires no proof. The sun can be seen by nothing but his own light. You cannot be lost on a straight road.

AUTHOR'S NOTES

1. One might feel aversion at this expression, but if one thinks deeply he will realize that holy personalities in every religion were men in physical bodies duly contacted with the High Lord, and advised, healed or talked of the Holy Father only as savior from sin and giver of salvation. God has no co-sharer is the general belief, and as such God, through the selected human pole, spoke each time and not man. The Divine Science brings to light this important fact and has more respect for all such personalities and their teachings than any religious circles today.

Sant Tulsi Sahib of Hathras (U. P., India) once, accompanied by some of his devoted disciples, visited a fair in the locality there. Among some visitors who gathered as inquirers and seekers around him happened to be a queen, Tara Mati by name, who leaving her state carriage at a distance, came for darshan of holy Tulsi Sahib.

WHAT IT IS

Casting a glance over the thousands of people in the fair, Tulsi Sahib uttered a few words: "If anyone or the whole multitude comes to me and says that they want to see the True Lord on High, I will take them to Him just now." Queen Tara Mati, who heard him, stepped forward with folded hands and said, "Please take me to Him, O Holy One." She sat with eyes closed on the ground and was given the experience right there on the spot. When she came back into the physical body from the high regions and opened her eyes, she said, "You were on the high seat of the Great Lord. Why did you not tell me so before?" Tulsi Sahib replied, "You would not have believed me then."

2. As a description of this subject, as revealed by the Sants, would take too much space, it is omitted here.

Swami Ji (Sant Shiv Dayal Singh Ji of Agra) when casting off his physical body at will, which Sants do, said as his last words: "In the phenomena of life on earth each variety of embodied creation has been lifted to the next grade of category. Selected ones (among men) with high virtuous living will be inclined to this side (the inner science)." (Life of Swamiji Maharaj, fourth edition, 1938, p. 117)

(Sant) Maulana Shamas Tabrez once said: "When I die and my body is burnt and my ashes are used as manure in a wheat field, and that wheat is made into flour, and bread is made of it, and that bread is served to be eaten, then not only the eater but the server of the bread will be intoxicated (with the love of Him) to an extent beyond expression.”

3. A Sant will never say that he is a Sant. Hazur, when he was told that he was true Guru Nanak, used to say openly before thousands in Satsang that he did not bear any likeness even to the dogs of Guru Nanak. This humility places Sants above the level of the highest cultivated human beings, who are often prey to egotism. It is the summit of merits of Sants as men.

Concealment is the essential attribute of Sants. It is inherent in their character. God is concealed, and prefers to remain so, from the external view of man. This Law is from the High One for those bodies in which the Lord is pleased to work. Disregard of this Divine Law results in bodily punishment. For this reason also, a Master Saint never shows any miracle for attracting souls from mundane life for purposes of initiation. A student or disciple, however, sees any number of miracles at each move in this world or next after initiation. Sants neither dress themselves distinctly nor bear nor keep any mark, sign or symbol with them. They do not say they are high of self, but mention their own Masters. When told they are great, they reply that it is none of their doing; it is the kindness and mercy of their Master.

WHAT IT IS

4. Sadhu is another common name for a Sant, and there exists a great deal of misconception about this term. The word as used here is not meant to refer to the millions of people who wear the colored robes found in India, and generally known as sadhus. A distinctive dress is not necessarily proof that a man has made inner progress.

5. For (3) and (4) cf. Yog Vashisht.
